Joseph Kennedy Dies

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Joseph Patrick Kennedy, patriarch of an ill-starred American political dynasty, died today, losing an eight-year struggle for life. He was 81.

In a brief announcement from the Kennedy family compound on Cape Cod overlooking Nantucket Sound, a family spokesman said death came at 11:05 a.m. (EST).

His wife Rose and other members of the family were with him at the time, the spokesman said.

A financier and one of the nation's wealthiest men, Kennedy had been partially paralyzed since suffering a stroke in Palm Beach, Fla., on Dec. 19, 1961.

The former ambassador had suffered setbacks from time to time since then, and had been growing progressively weaker since sustaining a mild heart attack Saturday.

The founding father of the Kennedy clan suffered through the assassinations of his sons John and Robert after losing his eldest, Joseph P. Jr., in World War II.

John was killed in Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22, 1963. Robert was shot in Los Angeles June 5, 1968, and died the next day. He had just received a boost in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination with a victory in the California primary.

Navy Lt. Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. was killed in action Aug. 12, 1944. He was piloting a plane assigned to knock out German V2 rocket bases when the craft exploded.

Edward, the youngest and only surviving son, had a close brush with death June 19, 1964, in a plane crash. His back was broken, but he recovered after a six-month stay in hospitals.

Tragedy of another sort hit the family last summer when a car driven by Edward plunged into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island off the Massachusetts coast and Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, of Washington, a former secretary of Robert, drowned.

The accident and its repercussions clouded the political future of the senator, who did not report the mishap for more than eight hours and who was given a two-month suspended sentence for leaving the scene of an accident.

Aluminum Plant to Be Heavy User of Electricity

John Stinich, facilities manager of the Noranda Aluminum Company plant at New Madrid, estimated last night that the plant would use more electricity in an hour than Sikeston consumes in a month.

His comment was made during a speech by John Bryan Snider, cost accountant at the plant, to the Rotary club at the Rustic Rock Inn.

Snider said the company hoped to begin processing alumina in month from electrically heated furnaces. A rod, wire and cable plant on the industrial site already is manufacturing wire in test runs from aluminum shipped into the plant.

Noranda's aluminum processing plant will convert alumina, which will be shipped by barge up the Mississippi river from Louisiana, into aluminum ingots or billets. Molten aluminum from the plant will be used in the rod, wire and cable facility.

There will be 186 furnaces in the smelter plant, which will operate 24 hours a day. Coke will be shipped by barge from the north, Snider said reduced to powder and will be used to manufacture carbon anodes to maintain even temperatures in the furnaces.

Alumina will be removed from barges by suction onto conveyors and carried into large storage bins at the plant. Alumina is a powdered substance manufactured from bauxite.

Snider said that aluminum can be processed by extrusion, casting, rolling, forging and by drawing into desired shapes for a variety of uses.

A power plant is being built on the site to furnish electricity for the Noranda plant, now under construction.

Snider said that bauxite was presented in the soil everywhere except in the arctic regions and that aluminum was discovered in 1821. At first the metal was high priced but discovery of a new method of processing it brought the price down. Snider was introduced by Kenneth Williams.

Bill Swann, a member of the spokane Valley, Wash., Rotary club and Noranda plant engineer, was another guest at the meeting.

Charles E. Lewis, whose classification is office machines, repair, was introduced as a new member. Another new member is Richard Tilleros, whose classification is computer data processing service.

Lee Downey of Houston, Mo., was a guest of Thatcher Scism; George Butler was a guest of Clyde L. Launius and Ralph Hamp of St. Louis, a guest of Pat Jones.

Emily Bruce entertained at the piano.

Shots Fired Through Glass

NEW MADRID - Vandals struck at the Seemann - Monan Motor Company, 423 Main Street, last night. Shots were fired through two plate glass show windows and into door windshields and door glasses of seven 1970 Chevrolet, Oldsmobile and Pontiac automobiles. Damage is estimated at $1,000.

The damage was discovered this morning by the owner, Robert Seemann, when he went to work.

Police Chief O. E. Householder said the damage was probably done by a small .22 caliber weapon.

Two Treated

Two received emergency treatment yesterday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Ronda Aileen Miller, East Prairie, injured right eye, and Willa B. Rodgers, Sikeston, injured finger.

Farmer May Get More of Food Dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers may receive the biggest share of consumer food dollars this year since 1955, says the Agriculture Department.

A preliminary estimate of the costs of marketing the nation's food shows farmers may get 41 cents of each dollar spent by consumers for items originating on farms.

Last year farmers received 39 cents of each dollar spent on a selected "market-basket" list of food items. Except for the first three months when the average was 40 cents, this year's quarterly share has been 41 cents, the department said.

The report, issued Monday, said food prices probably will continue rising during the first half of 1970. This reflected a report last Friday in which economists said 1969 retail food prices probably would average nearly 5 per cent more than last year.

Officials said the market-basket list of food, which cost $983 for an entire year in 1957-59, was expected to average $1,174 this year.

Last year the same amount of food cost $1,118 when the farmer received 39 cents of each dollar consumers spent.

The 1969 market-basket price was estimated to include $477 paid to farmers, and $697 for transporting, processing and marketing it at retail stores.

"Returns to farmers for market-basket foods in the third quarter of 1969 were up 10.7 per cent from a year earlier," the report said. "Animal products accounted for most of the rise, although returns were also up moderately for other products."

Driver Injured

A 1967 Buick driven by Nell Rose Rives, 45, Marble Hill, was going north on highway 51, when a 1957 Chevrolet, driven by Clell August Gibbar, 77, Perryville, came out from a drive at 11:30 a.m. eight miles south of Perryville.

The Rives woman applied the brakes and skidded into a culvert on he west side of the road, the state patrol reported.

She was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville, where she was treated for head cuts.

Astronauts Bide Time in Orbit

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — America's Apollo 12 explorers circled the moon in perfect orbit today, only hours away from a bold attempt at a bull's-eye landing on the craggy, pocked surface and man's second expedition to this mysterious world.

Their target: a tight 400-footwide circle on the eastern edge of the Ocean of Storms.

Their goal: the first detailed scientific exploration of the lunar surface.

Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean reported they were ready for the landing after their first close-up, breath-taking look at the moon's stark beauty, a sight they described as "fantastic."

"We're ready to go," declared Bean after an inspection of the landing craft Intrepid showed everything "shipshape."

The astronauts slept through most of earth's daylight hours today, resting for a grueling night in which Conrad and Bean are to fly Intrepid to the moon while Gordon continues to orbit in the command ship Yankee Clipper.

The landing is set for 1:53 a.m. EST Wednesday.

Hours later, at 6:02 a.m., Conrad and Bean are to start a 3½hour excursion outside, becoming the third and fourth men to leave their footprints in the powdery lunar soil.

A second excursion is scheduled early Thursday. Both will be broadcast live to earthlings via color television.

If successful, Conrad and Bean will record another triumph for human courage and knowledge and they will open boundless frontier of space a bit farther, paving the way for future Apollo voyagers to explore more difficult terrain in mountains and craters.

Conrad and Bean slipped through a connecting tunnel into Intrepid's cabin early today to inspect and test many of its systems.

After an 80-minute check, Bean reported: "We've checked out all the things we're supposed to and they're all shipshape. We're ready to go."

Conrad and Bean hope to set Intrepid down precisely in a 400foot-wide circle in the Ocean of Storms on the western side of the moon's visible face at 1:53 a.m. EST Wednesday. Their goal is the first detailed scientific exploration of the lunar surface.

Conrad and Bean inspected the landing craft six hours after Apollo 12 swept into lunar orbit which prompted outbursts of awe and enthusiasm from all three as they gazed at the wild and wondrous landscape below.

"Wowee!" Bean shouted Monday night. "Boy it's beautiful down there. Look at that crater."

Through color television, the astronauts shared their magnificent view with earthlings a quarter-million-miles away.

The 30-minute telecast followed the course of Apollo 12 as it moved across a narrow band, moving from east to west. Large and small craters, rugged mountains and flat plains were visible as the camera panned across the desolate landscape.

"Even in earth orbit at night or in the daytime, the sky was never as black as it is here," Conrad reported. "This is the blackest black I ever saw."

For Conrad and Bean the view from 70 miles high was a preview for their attempt to land on the eastern shore of the Ocean of Storms.

They are to separate the landing craft Intrepid from the command ship Yankee Clipper at 11:16 p.m. tonight. For more than 7½ hours they will keep the world in suspense as they execute maneuvers on the dangerous and difficult descent.

Their goal is a pinpoint landing near an unnamed crater, an area described by Conrad before the flight as "gently rolling, pocked with small craters, but relatively smooth."

The astronauts have dubbed the landing target "Pete's Parking Lot" because it is Conrad, the Apollo 12 commander, who must steer Intrepid to the touchdown.

Using new procedures, the astronauts hope to overcome the four- mile landing error of Apollo 11 last July and park close to a 600-foot-wide crater which is the home of an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft which softlanded on the moon 2½ years ago.

The stage was set for man's second attempt to land on the moon at 10:47 p.m. Monday night when Conrad, Gordon and Bean triggered Yankee Clipper's big engine on the lunar backside and swept into an initial orbit ranging from 72 to 194 miles above the surface.

It wasn't until 18 minutes later, when Apollo 12 reappeared around the edge of the moon, that orbit was confirmed.

Conrad's voice broke the silence. "Yankee Clipper with Intrepid in tow has arrived on time.

"I guess that like everyone else who has just arrived, the three of us are plastered to the windows just looking," he added. "For naval troops, it doesn't look like a very good place to pull liberty, though."

Bell City Man Given Jail Term

George Butrum, Bell City, was given a 60-day jail term this morning in magistrate court after he told Judge M. E. Montgomery he had never "made an attempt" to get a driver's license.

The judge also levied a $25 fine against Butrum for failure to have a license.

Before the sentence was imposed, Butrum told the judge he had intended to take an examination for license next week.

Judge Montgomery reinstated a parole for Joyce Litchford, Sikeston, after revoking it last week. She was given a six- month jail sentence on May 29 for writing bad checks. This was suspended pending good behavior for one year.

Upon learning last week the woman had since written additional bad checks, Judge Montgomery revoked the parole and ordered the sentence be served. She appeared in court this morning with an attorney, who informed the court that restitution would be made on the checks. The judge reinstated the parole providing she pays court costs within a week.

Parole for Harold Ray "Bubba" Smith, Sikeston, was revoked this morning. Smith was given a six month jail term on Jan. 28 for aiding and assisting others to escape from the juvenile detention cell at Benton on Jan. 6.

After serving more than 100 days of his sentence, a brother appeared with Smith before Judge Montgomery and said he had a job for him in another state.

Smith was recently charged with public intoxication by police and was being held in custody for failure to pay his fine.

He appeared in magistrate court this morning and Judge Montgomery ordered the remainder of this jail term be served.

James E. Moore III, assistant Scott County prosecuting attorney, represented the state.

Judge Montgomery levied a suspended 60-day jail sentence against Ronald S. Darnell, Sikeston, for improper vehicle registration. Moore told Judge Montgomery Darnell's license plate expired in July. Darnell told the judge he had "no money" to purchase a license. Judge Montgomery suspended the jail term upon payment of $5 and costs. Darnell is on probation for one year.

Persons fined for speeding were Elinor Gaines, Dexter, $10; Ronald Rogers, St. Louis, $10, and Janet Knoderer, Painton, $10. Warrants were issued for Gary Garrison, 825 East Hunter, and Elizabeth Scott, St. Charles, who failed to appear on speeding charges.

John Lee Ladd, Sikeston, was fined $10 for having inadequate car brakes.

Dora Johnson, route one, Sikeston, was fined $10 for failure to have a driver's license.

Acie Dixon, 1505 North Street, was fined $10 for careless driving.

Roy Owens, Malden, was fined $10 for operating a limited licensed commercial vehicle in excess of 25 miles of Malden.

A bad check charge against Walter Cowan, 534 Matthews, was dismissed upon payment of costs.

A careless driving charge against Phillip Newman, route one, Sikeston, was dismissed after Moore told the court he had not been provided sufficient information from the Highway Patrol to prosecute.

James Stacy, Festus, pleaded innocent to child neglect. The case was continued one week.

Felonious bad check charges against Marvin Wyatt, no address given, and Nancy Gretchell, 415 Kendall, were continued a week to allow the defendants time to get legal advice.

A charge of entering the juvenile court room at Benton in an intoxicated condition was continued one week against Paul Phillips, Sikeston.

Water Treatment Plant Described

NEW MADRID — In regular bi- monthly session last night with president of the board Ed LaFalle presiding, the city council heard preliminary plans and saw specifications for a one million gallon per day water treatment plant.

The firm of Riddle and Associates, Kansas City, presented the plans and a mockup of the proposed plant. The plans provide for future expansion of the plant to provide 4 million gallons per day. The new plant will supply water requirements for a population of 5,000.

An ordinance was passed providing for no parking on Scott Street from the intersection from Crisler to Powell and from Powell to Virginia and Virginia to Main street.

By a 3 to 2 vote, the board passed a resolution permitting a variation in the zoning ordinance to allow Mrs. Earnest Lawrence to operate a beauty shop in a residence at 841 Main St., previously zoned residential.

Approval was given to a revolving fund of $5,000 for local purchases by Comstock Roper, sub- contractors, for the industrial park power plant project.

After discussion, the council ordered a $250 cash bond be required for tree cutting contractors for damage to city streets and power lines.

An audit of the Municipal Light and Power Plant for 1968 and the city for 1965 through 1968 was approved.

Bills approved in connection with power plant construction in the St. Jude Industrial Park were R. L. Jefferies Trucking Co., $365.88; Jones and Laughlin Steel Service, $4,859.11; the Lofland Co. of Arkansas, $252.84; Beaver Welding Supply Co., $668.09; General Installation Co., $781.87; Railroad Maintenance and Construction Co., $19,340.10; Cyclone Fence Division, $3,266.46; River, Sand, and Stone Co., $9,325; Armco Steel Inc., $2,380.08; Kaiser Engineers, Inc., Middletown, $1,305.07, Desoto Air Park, $285; Hannon Supply Co., $435.14; Fabrick Brothers Equipment Co., $359; Dorris Septic Tank, $332.50;

Ogden Surveying Equipment Co., $227.27; North Pacific Lumber Co., $3,628.41; Moores of Missouri, $864.27; Mine Safety Appliance Co., $205.80; Sligo Inc., $287.21; SIGHTSEER Campers, $1,450; St. Jude Ready Mix Co., $6,763.50; Lowes of Blytheville Inc., $1,060.05;

Stupp Brothers Bridge and Iron Co., $934; Burns and McDonnell Engineering Co., $82,229.28; Kaiser Engineer Inc., Oakland, Calif., $46,052.93; and Kaiser Engineers Inc., New Madrid, $80,140.58.

Arms Debate Lacks Usual Harshness

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Plainly concerned about the success of their arms limitation talks in Helsinki, the United States and the Soviet Union launched the annual disarmament debate at the United Nations Monday on an unusually conciliatory note.

Omission of the usual invective made delegates hopeful that this year's U.N. disarmament talks will be more fruitful than such discussions in the past.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost and Ambassador A.A. Roshchin of the Soviet Union both expressed hope that the Helsinki talks would bring an end to the nuclear arms race. Both also called for quick approval of the U.S.-Soviet draft treaty to keep the seabed free of nuclear weapons.

Despite reservations by some small nations, it seemed certain that the assembly would approve the U.S.-Soviet draft.

The only differences expressed by Yost and Roshchin concerned the curbing of chemical and biological weapons. Two drafts on the issue, submitted by Britain and the Soviet Union, are before the assembly.

The Russian declared that the subject had become urgent because of "experiments carried out in some countries where powerful bacteriological and chemical substances have been created which imperil" mankind.

Seven Cars Damaged

Yesterday at 4:40 p.m. on Ables road, a 1966 Chevrolet driven by David T. Greer, 16, 16 Green Meadows, ran into a tree stump, police reported. Carla Chaney, a passenger, suffered minor injuries.

The front end of the car was damaged.

At 10:08 a.m. yesterday on West Malone Ave. at Ferrell's Salvage Yard, a 1959 Chevrolet driven by George W. Orr, 44, Morehouse, collided with a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Raymond M. Pierce, 67, 669 West Malone.

The Orr vehicle was damaged on the right front headlight and fender. The Pierce auto was damaged on the bumper and left rear fender.

Yesterday at 3:43 p.m. at 222 North Main St., a 1969 Mustang driven by Joseph D. Dover, 26, 810 North Ranney, ran into a 1967 Ford pickup truck, driven by Annabel Cooper, 48, Anniston.

The front end of the Mustang was damaged. The left rear fender and bumper of the Ford was damaged.

At North Kingshighway and Lake Street at 5:30 p.m. yesterday, a 1969 Ford driven by Melissa McVay, 26, 1610 East Kathleen, and a 1967 Chevrolet driven by Pauline Husher, 51, 106 Hunter, came together.

Private Helsinki Sessions Begin

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Awash with conviviality, U.S. and Soviet negotiators began private talks today to search out prospects for an accord to curb the nuclear arms race.

U.S. Ambassador Gerard C. Smith, Soviet delegate Vladimir S. Semenov and their advisers met at the American Embassy to begin working out arrangements for substantive negotiations. These preliminary discussions behind closed doors are expected to last several weeks.

The meeting today lasted an hour and a half and Smith afterward told newsmen only that they would meet again "pretty soon." He refused to say when, but other conference sources said the meeting would be Thursday.

Semenov had nothing to say to newsmen as he left the embassy.

Whether or not the envoys ever get beyond the preliminary round, the sendoff for SALT—Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—is being bathed in official good will and cordiality.

After the formal, champagnesipping public opening Monday, Finnish Foreign Minister Ahti Karjalainen entertained the diplomats at a reception.

Finnish President Urho Kekkonen is the host for today's reception. And Wednesday—for the first time in history, U.S. officials here believe—the U.S. and Soviet delegates are giving a joint party.

At Monday night's affair, Smith told newsmen the talks had "started well." Semonov termed the opening session "very fine" and predicted that would apply to today's meeting too.

Cantrell Launches Drive To Save Income Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A campaign in support of a beleaguered income tax increase is under way in Missouri.

Rep. E.J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, announced the membership of a 51-member "Information Please" Citizens Committee Monday to head the drive. He said its purpose will be to tell the truth about Missouri's financial needs.

He charged Sen. Earl R Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, is trying to mislead the people in his campaign to get enough petition signers to put the income tax law on the ballot as a referendum issue next year.

"I think there's a chance," Cantrell said, "that when Missourians are given the facts they're going to respond to the needs of the state."

Cantrell said penal and other state institutions are short handed, the state is losing trained personne, and almost every area of state government has serious financial problems.

"I know the senator is telling the people what they like to hear," Cantrell said, "but he people ought to acquaint themselves with the facts before signing" Blackwell's referendum petitions.

He said the first phase of the campaign will be distribution of a pamphlet outlining the state's financial situation. Speakers also will be supplied to tell the story.

Cantrell said the work is being financed by voluntary contributions and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who got the income tax bill passed, had nothing to do with setting up the citizens committee.

Cantrell will be chairman and serving as secretary-treasurer will be Robert Livingston, Jefferson City builder.

The first name on the membership list was John I. Rollings, president of the State AFL-CIO Labor Council.

Nixon Asks Tariff Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress today to enact legislation to give him authority to make minor tariff adjustments and to permit industries to obtain easier relief from import competition.

Describing his proposals as modest, Nixon said in a special message he had found it in the national interest to continue a 35-year-old policy of promoting freer world trade.

But at the same time, he recommended that U.S. industries adversely affected by imports be provided with "readier relief"—a proposal that paralleled one advanced by former President Lyndon B. Johnson but which was not acted upon.

Demo Leaders Blame GOP of Suppression

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders, keynoted by Hubert H. Humphrey, have accused the Nixon administration of seeking to stifle criticism and suppress dissent in the United States.

Humphrey aimed the charge at Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, his successor in that job— and beyond, at President Nixon.

"I believe the Nixon administration is really not trying to bring us together, but is engaged, knowingly or unknowingly, in a polarization process," said Humphrey, "polarization with the intended result of the suppression of dissent."

"I doubt that our country has seen in the past 20 years such an obvious and calculated appeal to our people's lesser or baser instincts," Humphrey said.

Humphrey, Democratic presidential nominee a year ago, said the administration is on a course which will lead to backlash, repression and reaction.

The Democratic Policy Council, an issue-shaping panel of party leaders headed by Humphrey, adopted a resolution declaring:

"We cannot tolerate in silence any attempt to silence debate in a free society."

The Humphrey charges and the council resolution were prompted by Agnew's Nov. 13 speech criticizing television network news coverage—specifically those commentaries that followed Nixon's report to the nation on the Vietnam war.

Humphrey said the Democrats may ask the television networks for equal time to answer Agnew's speech, which was broadcast live from a Republican conference in Des Moines, Iowa.

Illegal Money Racket Reported in Saigon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A billion-dollar international racket in illegal money is centered in Saigon and has ties in banking circles throughout the world, a Senate subcommittee was told today.

Robert R. Parker, a U.S. Embassy staff member in Saigon, told the Senate investigations subcommittee the black market in money reaches more than $150 million a year in Vietnam.

Parker is chairman of the embassy's irregular practices committee, a group of embassy personnel set up by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in an effort to cut down black market activities.

Heading the international money racket, he said, is a criminal syndicate of Muslim money changers from South India.

It operates through men of several nationalities from wealthy businessmen to gangs of GI deserters, he added.

Parker described an elaborate transfer system by which dollars and South Vietnamese piasters are funneled into legitimate banking channels. He said that one common payee that was used by the ring was the "Prysumeen" account at the Manufacturers Hanover Trust in New York City.

"In 1968, traffic in this account was in excess of $1.5 million a month," Parker tesified. He said Vietnamese, Koreans, Chinese, and Americans—both soldiers and civilians—are involved in the currency manipulation scheme.

"At the top of the black market hierarchy, in a kind of executive position, are a small group of well organized Asian-Indians," Parker said. "Most of these are Muslims from the Madras area of South India.

"These men—and their elaborate and obscure family ties— constitute a syndicate in the most criminal and sinister sense of the word," Parker said.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, DConn., chairman of the investigations subcommittee said the currency manipulation racket is seriously hindering attempts to stabilize the South Vietnamese economy.

Ribicoff said the illegal money market involves federal employes, members of the U.S. armed forces, government-affiliated contractors, American businessmen, South Vietnamese citizens and nationals of other countries.

He said witnesses will give evidence on specific illegal money dealings through American and Hong Kong banks totaling about $300 million over the last five years.

The hearings are the second phase of an extensive on-the-scence probe by staff investigators over the last year.

The first phase dealt mainly with a small group of senior noncommissioned officers accused of raking hundreds of thousands of dollars from NCO clubs in Germany, the United States and South Vietnam.

Large profits are possible in illegal money operations in Vietnam, subcommittee aides said, because of the substantial difference in legal and illegal exchange rates.

The official exchange rate is 118 South Vietnamese piasters to the dollar.

The black market rate is usually 170 piasters to the dollar and has reached 200, investigators reported.

Ribicoff said the currency manipulation racket has done serious damage to the South Vietnamese economy, has made more difficult the fight against inflation and has reduced the effect of the American AID program.

In earlier hearings, witnesses pointed to William O. Wooldridge, former sergeant major of the Army, as a leader of a small band of sergeants that profited from a wide range of illegal activities at the clubs they ran.

Other witnesses alleged that Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, while provost marshal general of the Army, shielded Wooldridge from his own investigators.

The Army has stripped Wooldridge and Turner of the Distinguished Service Medals previously awarded them. And Wooldridge, still on active duty in New Mexico, was stricken from the list of command sergeant majors.

CAN'T SAY WE'RE SORRY

The search for the Loch Ness monster is finished for this year. The tourists and the searchers, including the now-famous yellow submarine, have packed up and are leaving the shores of the Scottish lake until next summer. The creature, if such exists, will have a little less than a year to devise some means of further evasive action to elude his would-be finders.

The Loch Ness Phenomena Investigation Bureau in its report on this year's observation season claims 20 verified sightings from May 17 to October 12. Last year their claim was of 14 sightings. There were 23 in 1967 and 29 in 1966. It was in 1967 that scientists claimed to have received sonar readings indicating that there was something alive and large in the murky depths of the Loch.

The Loch Ness monster shares a special niche in folklore with the yeti, or abominable snowman. These are two very special phenomena of our day. Neither has been conclusively proven. But neither have they been disproven. The only other phenomena that have received notable distinction that we can think of offhand are the flying saucers.

We have mixed emotions in regard to the Loch Ness monster. We don't really know if we want to see the creature disturbed. On the one hand we share the natural curiosity of man. But we are also aware of too many instances of man's cruelty toward his natural surroundings, animal, vegetable and mineral. We would not like to see this creature, or creatures, molested by the poking and prodding of "scientific" experimenters. Perhaps it is our deep respect for anything that has managed to exist for so long without being ruined by the influence of man. In any event, we offer our congratulations to Nessie for another successful season, and we wish it many more years in the folklore stories of our wondrous world.

ANOTHER TAX LOOPHOLE NEEDS TO BE CLOSED

Should organizations contributing to political campaigns enjoy Federal tax-exempt status?

Most of us would answer in the negative and so does Congressman Benjamin Blackburn (D-Ga.).

The Corrupt Practices Act prohibits any corporation from making political contributions; yet, Rep. Blackburn complains, labor unions which are technically corporations openly support and finance favored candidates under the guise of "educational" programs. His legislation to deny tax exemption to any organization which financially supports or endorses a candidate would apply to business or trade associations, charitable foundations, etc., eligible for Federal tax exemption.

It would amend the Internal Revenue Code to prohibit financing, endorsement and other support for any candidate in any public election, the penalty being loss of tax exemption for four years. This would result in taxes on the organization's income and loss of the charitable deduction for those contribution to be organization.

Business support for this reform is so strong that the National Federation of Independent Business poll found only 10 per cent of the business members opposed and 4 per cent undecided.

Congressman Blackburn brands the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) as "one of the most militant political organs in the country" although its exemption is based on "education." By assessing each union a monthly "contribution" based on the local membership, COPE provides funds for campaigns and propaganda. And we have evidence of this political power in Kansas since it is widely known that Governor Robert Docking received this financial support along with a few legislators with whom we are acquainted.

The fact is that union members who object to the use of their dues now have little recourse. In one case, it took 12 years for objecting members to gain legal satisfaction, at the Supreme Court level.

The Blackburn bill would permit lobbying before Congress but would sharply limit propaganda to the public. It is based on recommendations of the American Bar Association's Committee on Tax-Exempt Organizations.

This is another tax loophole that needs to be nailed shut.

STEAMFITTERS' 562 - A CANCEROUS GROWTH

Today's front page carries a story revealing what happens in a city when the disreputable St. Louis Steamfitters 562 moves in.

As might be expected in the New Madrid case, a steamfitter ex-convict is running the job. And as one would anticipate on a St. Louis steamfitters 562 job, costs have soared far beyond estimates. A New Madrid spokesman pointed out that it cost more to move a piece of heavy equipment 1½ miles from a railroad spur to the plant than it did to ship this piece of equipment across the seas and then across the country by mail.

The average citizen might shrug this point off as not affecting him in any way. However, increased cost of construction, whether it be in private industry or in public work, eventually comes out of the average man's pocket in the form of higher prices or higher taxes.

St. Louis Local 562 of the Steamfitters Union is headed by ex-convict Larry Callanan who surrounds himself with musclemen and hoodlums. The corrupt tentacles of this union reach into politics at all levels. Contributing hundreds of thousands of dollars, the steamfitters have managed to affect legislation and even to buy a pardon for Mr. Callanan during President Johnson's administration.

Callanan, not satisfied with the confines of St. Louis, has been reaching outward and made his first move in Jefferson City back in 1967. So far as we have been able to determine only two local contractors who had guts enough to fight him - the others have simply knuckled under.

A corrupt union such as Steamfitters 562 reflects upon all unions, and we wonder why some local unions are smearing their own good names by apparently cooperating with 562 in its jurisdictional fight with the CIU in Jefferson City.

The CIU is a legally constituted, independent union, and its members are performing work for contractors who are engaged in construction at the State Capitol and the new Highway Patrol building. Both of these jobs are being picketed by 562. We doubt very much that the picketing is legal, but legal or not, it has had the effect of disrupting work on both projects.

What is happening in New Madrid could happen here and we question that members of local carpenters union, the iron workers, the electricians and truck drivers would want to see it happen here. Yet as mentioned above the officials of these unions seem to be working on the Steamfitters' side.

Steamfitters 562 is a rotten apple in the overall union barrel and decent unions should be doing everything in their power to give 562 the boot.

The men who joined CIU rather than become associated with the scandal-ridden steamfitters are to be congratulated for their common sense and their courage. Those who joined up with Steamfitters 562 did so we are sure because of empty promises and intimidations.

Pat Hickey, Steamfitter 562's member of the Missouri Legislature and local business agent for the union, now drives a Lincoln Mark III, one of the most expensive cars made in America.

Of course, union dues bought this car. Dues are also paying Callanan's expensive lawyers who are appealing his sentence in 1968 to another term in jail. Union members are also being assessed for 562's political slush fund and have no voice as how it is distributed.

This rotten union has been detrimental to the industrial growth of the State of Missouri. Like a cancerous growth, it should be cut out of Mid-Missouri. And it is up to local union members to perform this surgery.

Beetle Bailey, the Army's most famous buck private, whose antics appear regularly in the Daily Satndard and 133 other newspapers around the world, has scorned the GI's hallowed rule, "Never volunteer!" Mort Walker's famous cartoon character has offered his services to the American Red Cross.

A pocket-size comic book, titled, "Now Hear This, Beetle Bailey," has been prepared by Walker as a voluntary contribution, to explain to military personnel how the Red Cross can be of help in the transition back to civilian life. 500,000 copies of the booklet are being distributed at military installations, primarily those overseas. In addition, Walker has drawn two posters illustrating the Red Cross help theme – one for civilian audience and the other for use at military posts.

During World War II, Mort Walker served as a rifleman in an infantry company, later attended Infantry Officer Candidate's School, and then served in Italy as an Intelligence and Investigating officer. He was discharged a First Lieutenant in 1946 and returned to the University of Missouri to complete his education.

Colonel E.I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today urged parents to show their children a good example in the way they drive.

"Safe driving begins at home," Hockaday stated. "As parents drive and act, so do their children. Youngsters learn by watching. By the time they are old enough to begin driver education at school or receive practical instruction from another source, he and she have had several years of watching their parents at the wheel. What these drivers of tomorrow observe of their parents' driving habits and driving attitude will certainly affect the way in which they will approach the development of this new skill."

The Patrol Superintendent noted that if parents exceed the speed limit, refuse to yield the right of way, follow another vehicle too closely, or drink and then drive, there is a good possibility their youngsters may do the same when they get behind the wheel. These unsafe driving practices, of course, lead to accidents resulting in injuries and deaths.

"Keep in mind that in driving as in other aspects of behavior, it is what you, the parent,DO rather than what you SAY that has the most powerful influence on the young," Hockaday continued. "They are going t learn from you; it is your obligation to provide a good example.

"Parents just naturally want the best for their children," he concluded. "I urge you, therefore, to give your youngsters the best possible example of safe driving. Their lives and the lives of others who will use the highways depend on it."

Last Christmas Day, a distinguished denizen of California's swank Hillsborough suggested to his children and some of their friends that they go caroling through the neighborhood.

Accompanied by his attractive wife, he and his troubadors set out. As they were tuning up at their first stop, a distraught woman came to the door and said, "Look, fella, I'm busy as all get- out. The plumbing's on the blink and I can't get anyone to come and fix it. A mob is coming to dinner and things here are in one heluva mess! If you really feel like singing carols, come back about 9 o'clock Okay?"

"Okay," Bing Crosby said and led his troupe off to interrupt another household where the plumbing was more sophisticated.

"Where is my soup?" he demanded.

"I put the medicine in, Sir, and now I'm waiting for the noodles to lay down!" was the reply.

BALANCE OF PAYMENTS--SEESAW RIDE OFR U.S.

Much may have gone wrong for President Johnson in the closing years of his administration, but at least the financial breaks went his way at the very end.

In his final State of the Union address, he was able to point to both a modest budget surplus, thanks largely to the 10 per cent surtax proving more lucrative than anticipated, and a plus in the nation's balance of payments.

The latter is the more surprising and, paradoxically, also causing some concern. For the first year since 1957 more money came into the country than flowed out, contrary to predictions as late as last November that the string of deficits would be continued by something like $1.4 billion.

Instead, the combination of U.S. business bringing home an unprecedented $1.5 billion from its overseas operations and an unusually large inflow of foreign funds, more than $2 billion attracted primarily by rising U.S. stock prices and interest rates, during the year's final quarter converted red ink into black.

What causes concern is that the payments surplus is, if not illusory, at least of a highly transient nature. With the slightest downturn in the U.S. economy, the foreign money could and probably would flow out again. And overshadowed by the good news in the ledger is the disturbing fact that the most important item in our interns---trade---dropped drastically to what Treasury Undersecretary Frederick L. Deming termed "a miserable $500 million" surplus.

In pervious years, overseasst spending and the defense effort have been the big spenders, dumping billions of dollars abroad and fueling the run on American gold reserves. A healthy trade surplus, running from $3 to $5 billion annually, has gone a long way to balance the drain and keep deficits manageable.

But for too many years the United States has been managing like Eliza on the ice, jumping from expedient to expedient with the bolldhounds of disaster--a panic run on the dollar-- snapping at our heels. With the once-dependable trade surplus now in danger, something more than expedients is needed to deal with a chronic balance-of-payments problem that has never looked blacker, despite the black ink for 1968.

NEED FOR AIRCRAFT CARRIERS

Congress has been debating the appropriation of funds for building more nuclear powered aircraft carriers. These carriers are desperately needed, particularly in view of the increasing size and power of the Soviet fleet.

According to Admiral Thomas Mooter, Chidf of Naval Operations, "Except for Polaris, there is probably no item of U.S. sea power the Soviets would prefer us to cut back more than our aircraft carriers."

It is easy to see why the Soviets would welcome such a cutback. Our carriers have proved invaluable in South Vietnam, serving as the base for half of all combat sorties into North Vietnam. Carriers provide mobile bases for our air power, and are completely under the control of our government, whereas land bases in foreign countries are not.

In testimony before the Senate armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary John Chafee pointed out: "Trends in international affairs...justify the decision to project a modern, capable attack carrier force into the future."

The Soviet fleet can now carry Soviet military might to any point on the globe. The Soviets have modernized their fleet by adding helicopter carriers and several new classes of nuclear and conventional submarines. This is no time for our government to reduce the effectiveness of its naval forces.

Nuclear powered carriers are especially valuable, as the nuclear carrier ENTERPRISE has proved in Vietnam. these carriers can go much longer without reflueling, thus increasing their range. They can also travel faster, thus making them less vulnerable.

Congress should appropriate the funds to build the three new nuclear-powered carriers requested by the Navy.

PARIS (AP) — They are 68,000 strong in Paris, looking out at the world from behind a curtain parted just far enough to see who you are and what you are doing on their turf.

They are the city's concierges, women whose job as apartment building house mothers is as much a French cliche —and truism— as a beret or a glass of red wine.

Now, the old woman and the job are dying out. The president of the concierge union, grandiosely called Le Syndicat les Gardiens d'Immeubles—The Building Guards Union—says 20,000 of the women will disappear over the next 10 years and not be replaced. Some 5,000 concierges are now over 75 years of age.

Letter boxes, house telephones, and a desire on the part of landlords not to pay them anymore are pushing the concierge aside.

Traditionally, she had reigned over apartment buildings from a ground-floor apartment called a loge, taking mail to tenants, holding their packages and taking out the garbage. In some cases, she has spied on visitors from behind their loge curtain, terrified subleasers with threats and trafficked in apartments with rental agencies.

Done up in a house dress, warmed by a black sweater and wool stockings and reading a copy of the gossip newspaper "Ici Paris", the concierge is a standard character in French theater and literature.

Unlike American apartment house superintendents, Paris concierges don't tend to leaky faucets or screw in new fuses. On their wobbly legs and in their felt slippers, many have enough trouble getting around their loges.

Concierge salaries run from about $80 to $100 a month, according to the union, but now that the women are entitled to a month's paid vacation and social security, owners of small buildings are just as happy to have them gone. Carpenters and other small businesses sometimes can be fit into their former quarters.

The union's newsletter showed the situation clearly: there were more than 100 ads placed by people seeking concierge jobs and only one employment offer —"Present yourself at Busy Bee Cleaning, 4 Cite d'Hauteville, for work as a housekeeper."

The number of concierge jobs is also reduced every year by 200 to 300 as a result of health inspections finding their loges unfit for human habitation.

"It's a sad situation," the union president, Rene Laffon, says, "because the women are paid these famine wages. But they accept life in a rat hole because they have nowhere else to go. Our retirement home has only room for 80."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--The armed forces runs a little-known, top-secret courier service that convoys this nation's military secrets under maximum security to U.S. bases around the world. Sleeplessly, the officers and men of the Armed Forces Courier Service baby-sit vital packets, crates and bags of secret material in transit.

Not long ago, a shipment of security documents to Frankfurt, Germany, was clandestinely unloaded at the airport. The weary but dutiful guardians were a bit startled when a crate of secret documents began to leak red liquid.

They poked into the classified cargo and discovered a dozen cases of red American wine, being smuggled as secret data by some army bigwig. The indomitable couriers had ridden shotgun on 120 bottles of non-secret, non-vintage wine.

Not only was this a serious violation of regulations but a disastrous breach of taste. The contraband wine had been bootlegged into Germany, which ranks second only to France in the quality of its wines.

--FLYING WINE CELLAR--

Horrified Army authorities immediately hushed up the incident. It might give the public the idea that the elite service, established to protect our nation's military secrets, had been corrupted by the Army brass into a military parcel post service for high-ranking scofflaws.

Queried by this column, the Army confessed that the flying wine cellar had been intended for the 25th anniversary of the liberation of Holland. Indeed, it was accompanied in the top-secret crates by plaques commemorating the historic battle. Like the wine, the plaques would hardly qualify as "classified material requiring protective handling by military courier," as the Army regulations require.

This column has learned that at least three other incidents of suspected illegal shipments by secret courier are under investigation. How much unchallenged contraband has gone from the U.S. to brass hats abroad, or from crony to crony within the U.S., cannot be determined

Note: Within the country, secret documents are often transported by air taxi and trucks. Priority Air Dispatch, Inc., handles some of these lucrative shipments. It is an interesting coincidence that Priority Air's chief dispatcher is a retired Navy commander, E.F. Carl, formerly director of the Armed forces Courier Service.

--INFERIOR U.S. SCHOOLS--

In a confidential report ot Congress, ex-Ambassador to Madagascar David King has declared bluntly that impoverished, underdeveloped Madagascar has better public schools than he has found in the United States.

"Its teaching methods are austere," he acknowledges, "without frills or gadgets." But he claims that Madagascar turns out "better informed, better trained and better adjusted" high school graduates. He blames the American "inferiority" upon "our failure to discipline our students to stretch their minds more fully."

Just back from Madagascar, King made a detailed study of the Malagasy school system during his 2 1/2 years as ambassador. Five of his own children attended school there. His findings, stamped "confidential," have been submitted to the House Education and Labor Committee.

"I have seen the Malagasy students in the fifth and sixth grades," he states, "wrestle with tough grammatical language assignments which wouldn't be expected of American students before at least the seventh or eighth grades, if ever. Since I cannot agree that Americans are innately less mature than Malagasy, I must assume the cause of this humiliating descrepancy is our own academic foot dragging."

In King's view, "The blackest day in the history of American education was the day our teachers threw away the word 'must' and substituted a low-fear permissiveness, incapable of meeting the average student's requirements for a program of systematic study. Today, an American parent has to enroll his children in a foreign school order to realize what a low-calorie diet they have actually been surviving on....

--TOO LITTLE HOMEWORK--

"The meagerness of our required workload is all the more bewildering in view of the increasing amounts of free time made available to our students by modern technology. The line taken at current academic conclaves is that America, being under pressure to teach its youth more facts in less time than ever before, has turned out a generation of students better informed than any other generation since the beginning of time.

"This may be correct if we are talking about quantities of students taught, but if we are talking about quantities of information absorbed by individual students, then the proposition is open to serious question."

Noting that Madagascar's total school budget "could scarcely pay for the nose cone on a Saturn V rocket," King acknowledged that American students "enjoy countless advantages" such as "a more cosmopolitan environment, a luxury budget for first-class facilities and opportunities for travel and broadening individual horizons."

But he demands: "How can our school system claim credit for these?

The King study may spur Congress into taking a more penetrating look at America's schools.

Comments To The Cube Or 'Why Remain A Virgin.'

Dear Readers: Remember the letter from Wyoming Ice Cube--the 18-year-old Casper cutie with the high date turnover? She had been called everything from a tease to a mental case. A pre-med student told her she'd probably have a nervous breakdown because of her pent up emotions. In desperation, the girl performed an analysis on her social life. Her findings were as follows: Invariably the fellow was mannerly and respectful on the first date. On the second date he made it clear he wasn't about to waste any more time. His question was to the point: "How about it?" On the third date if she wasn't willing to lie down and talk things over he would feed her telephone number to the nearest goat.

Cube asked me, "Is virginity outmoded? Do men REALLY want everything they ask for, or are they merely testing?"

I told her I'd ask the fellows. And I did. Here is a sampling of the replies:

YALE CLASS OF '42: This will probably come as a disappointment to most college students, but you didn't invent sex, my little chickadees. There was a good bit of it in "the olden days." I got my share, probably more. But the girl I married was the one who said, "Nothing doing until we get married." We had some knock-down, drag-out arguments but I was secretly happy that she won them all. We celebrate our 25th next month.

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA: I wish Ice Cube could listen to the conversations in the men's dorm. It would settle the question once and for all. The nicknames---"Mattress Mary," "Horizontal Helen," and "Round-heeled Ruthie" are just a few. Of course it's rotten, but most guys figure if a girl doesn't have any respect for herself, she doesn't deserve any from them.

COLORADO U.: If I score on the second or third date, I put C.P. next to the babe's phone number. It stands for "Community Property." I've never dated a C.P. more than three times. They are usually super-dumb and crashing bores.

FROM OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY: If Ice Cube is left sitting home on her highly prized assets because she refuses to go to bed on the third date, she should ask herself, "What's wrong with my bait? Why do I attract such scum?"

FROM ORLANDO: Men have been making jokes about chastity for a long time.---During World War II the G.I.'s in London said, "If a virgin walked down Trafalgar Square the statue of Lord Nelson would raise his hat to her." Funny how a guy will bed down with anyone who is willing but he'll kill a guy who takes advantage of his sister, or, heaven forbid, his daughter.

U. OF KANSAS: Cube is lucky to learn on the third date what the jerk is after. She can dump him fast instead of wasting her valuable time.

WATERLOO,ONTARIO: As a psychiatrist I can assure Ice Cube that vastly fewer people become disturbed because of abstention compared with those who are wracked with guilt caused by sexual promiscuity.---W.F.W. (M.D.)

FROM OMAHA: I married at age 30. My bride was 25. Neither my bride nor I had sexual intercourse until the night we were married. Please print my name. I am proud of it.---C.H.W.

Dear C.H.W.: Congratulations, Lover, but I'm not sure your wife would care for the publicity. If it's all the same to you, I'll just use your initials.

Teens are favoring a memento of childhood this season: skate keys, worn around the neck on a chain, for a watch fob on a vest or (in a smaller version) as a charm for a bracelet. The 14-karat gold skate key (left) is set with a small diamond and makes a perfect key to her heart this Christmas. Hair-care time can be cut to minutes with the hand-held, blower-dryer-brush-comb combination and the electric roller set (right). The roller set features 20 plastic rollers which heat in a few minutes, a vanity mirror and attractive carrying case. Nothing could be a more welcome gift for the gal on the go.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It hits men at different times and different places—for some it's at an important board meeting, for others, on the jam-packed commuter train or at their mother-in-law's house.

Suddenly, the word "Christmas" leaps into mind, the image of a wife or sweetheart flits past and the old sinking sensation hits the stomach as Everyman realizes he has to come through with an original gift for the holidays.

Christmas. Everyman reasons, is a time of joy and peace and happiness. Then why are his palms sweating?

Because he views the world of women's gifts as an impenetrable jungle set with frightening traps for male shoppers: Sweet little old ladies who turn into umbrella-wielding monsters in a department store; counters of outrageously priced, unidentifiable objects; crowds of careening females who all look as though they know where THEY'RE going, so why doesn't HE?

Listen, fellas, Christmas doesn't have to be that way. All you need is a vivid imagination: "If you were a woman, what would you want for Christmas?" Then fit your imagination to your budget.

The promise-her-anything slogan still holds this season. Perfume leaves her and you smelling like a rose for Christmas.

Fur can be fun, especially in muffs, scarves and boas. If you want to be more extravagant, a mini, maxi or in-between fur coat will warm her heart as well as her legs. Fake fur bags and hats make her smile, too.

Uncirculated coins are exactly the same as other coins except they have not been distributed through normal banking channels.

Risco Scores Upset

WARDELL -- Coach Randy Benson's surprising Risco Tigers upset fourth - seeded Holcomb in opening round play of the North Pemiscot Invitational tournament at the Ross gym here last night, 76-70 after top - seeded Delta C-7 crushed Naylor 75,47.

Tournament action resumes tonight as second - seeded Gideon battles Clarkton at 6:30 p.m. and third - seeded North Pemiscot meets Cooter at 8 p.m.

Seated in the number four spot, Holcomb was jolted with a loss by the impressive Rosco team. Risco, with four of its starters returning from last years team, looked tough as they fought back from an early deficit to post a win.

High point man for Risco was Larry Calvert with 20 points, but not far behind were teammates Alvin Owens with 18 and Darrell Wood with 16. For the Holcomb Hornets, Steve Lomax paced his squad with 20 points, as Miller and Collier followed with 18 and 15 points respectively.

Holcomb jumped into an early first quarter lead, as they out scored Risco 24-13. Their lead soon fell, as Risco scored 26 points to Holcomb's mere 10 in the second quarter. Risco was never able to regain the lead as Holcomb remained on top until the final buzzer sounded.

The Chargers, who opened up their 69 campaign with last night's victory, jumped off to a quick lead they never relinquished. Using the fast break and skillful outside shooting, the Number One seeded Chargers racked up a total of 34 field goals, while the losing Eagles could manage only 17. The rebounding game was about equal for both teams, but Naylor took a distinct advantage in the free throws, by netting 13 of their 47 from the line.

High point man of the contest was Paul Scott of the Chargers. He pumped in 21, with teammate Steve Jones close behind with 17. Naylor's leading scorer was John Armour, who managed 17 against the tight Charger defense.

With a first round, first game victory securely under their belts, Delta now advances into quarter - final action Thursday against the Risco Tigers. It's into the loser's bracket for Naylor as they meet the loser of last night's second game, the Holcomb Hornets, Thursday at 6:30.

Not until the Ducks boarded their plane at Spokane, 75 miles away, did someone realize their photographer was missing.

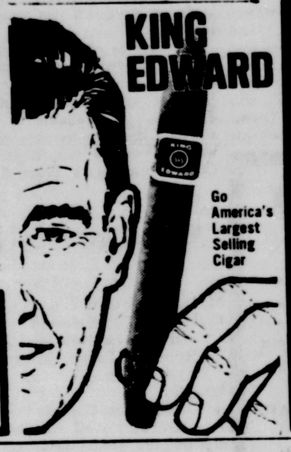

Stealing, bunting and knickers were baseball innovations of the 1860s. The World Almanac says. In 1865, Eddie Cuthbert of the Philadelphia Keystones was the first to steal a base and the next year Dickey Pearce of the Brooklyn Atlantics first deliberately bunted. The Cincinnati Red Stockings of 1868 were laughing-stocks when they introduced knickerbocker pants.

New York Mets were Little Leaguers while eight members of the Baltimore Orioles took part in the program in their respective home towns.

We can prove it's worth the extra money.

Old Taylor is not the only premium-priced Bourbon in America. But it does happen to be the top-selling premium-priced Bourbon in America.

There are about six different reasons for that. Before you pay an extra sou for Old Taylor, you should know what they are.

OLD TAYLOR
86 PROOF

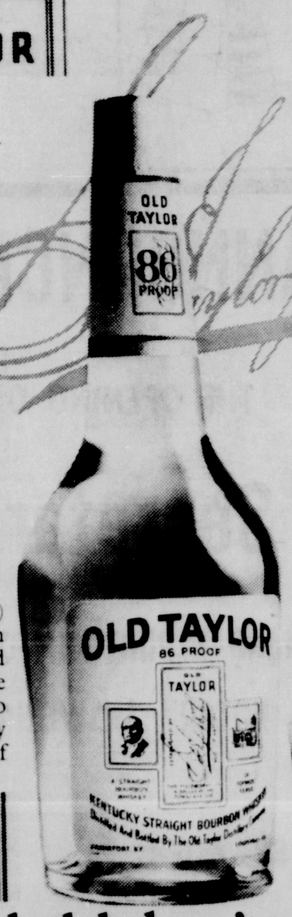

1. Old Taylor was created by an authentic genius. Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr. was easily the foremost Bourbon distiller in the late 1800's. Old Taylor is his crowning achievement. There's only one Old Taylor, simply because there was only one Colonel.

2. People (droves of them!) tried to copy Old Taylor. Finally, in 1909, an angry Col. Taylor changed the color of his label to a distinctive yellow, and printed a warning to would-be imitators where they couldn't miss it. That took care of that!

THIS YELLOW LABEL IS IN EXCLUSIVE AND CONCLUSIVE USE

3. If you think you're paying a kingly price because we distill in a castle, you're mistaken. We make Old Taylor here not because it's a castle, but because it's near the delicious limestone spring the Colonel discovered in 1887. We still draw our water from it. And nobody else gets close to it!

4. Old Taylor is a signed original. Another step the Colonel took to foil those would-be imitators. (He also went to Congress and got them to pass the Bottled-in-Bond Act—but that's another story.)

OF TOPMOST CLASS

5. The three words above are not a swinging slogan. But Col. Taylor put them there, and we haven't changed them any more than we've changed his Bourbon.

We still use the same costly small grains, still tend our mash as lovingly, still do everything just as he did it. Who are we to contradict a genius?

6. Taste it.

Old Taylor. What the label can't tell you, the flavor can.

Interstate Off, On Lanes To Be Built in Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Entrance and exit from I-55 at Cape Girardeau's southern city limits will be expedited under a program approved by the State Highway Commission in response to a request made last March.

The commission has given approval to the construction of two ramps on I-55, one leading to the northbound lane and the other providing exit from the southbound lane.

Announcement of the commission's approval came today by Edward L. Downs, from Albert C. Riley of New Madrid, southeast Missouri member on the commission.

Riley cautioned that the addition of the ramps to the interchange system is contingent upon approval from the Bureau of Public Roads in Washington and the providing of right of way without cost to the state or federal government

He said the ramps will be added to the state's five- year program and will be built when funds become available for additions to the program.

Marvin J. Snider, chief engineer for the highway department, was asked to work up cost estimates for the ramps and the necessary outer roadways, Mr. Riley said.

It was pointed out that while the planned additions are in the five- year program this does not necessarily mean it will be five years before they are built. If funds become available sooner and plans are completed the work can be put underway at that time.

It is not expected the right of way costs will be any problem. At the March meeting of the Cape Girardeau delegation with the commission C. A. Juden, owner of land involved, said he would provide without cost any right of way needed.

As outlined to the commission in March, the ramps are needed for these reasons:

1. Trucks and other traffic traveling south over Highway 74 and Highway 61 have no entrance to the northbound lane of I-55. They must go two miles out of their way in the southbound lane to the airport interchange and then turn back north, a total distance of four miles out of their way.

2. Vehicles traveling south on I-55 cannot turn westward onto Highway 74 until they, too, go to the airport interchange and come back north to reach an exit.

3. Travelers on Highway 25 and residents of Delta, Bell City, Advance and other points to the southwest cannot reach the northbound lane of I-55 unless they go through Cape Girardeau to reach an interchange, or take the southbound lane to the airport interchange and then turn north.

Suggested by the delegation, and approved by the commission, was this remedy:

1. Build a connecting, curved exit route from the southbound lane of Highway 61 to I-55, entering the I-55 northbound lane. This was proposed just north of Cape LaCroix Creek near the old Benton Hill Road entrance to Highway 61.

2. Make an exit from the southbound lane of I-55 north of the Highway 61 overpass. This would connect to an existing service road most of which is on highway department right of way. The service road leads toward Highway 74.

Mr. Juden said he would provide the right of way for the Highway 61 I-55 link to the north and, if needed, right of way adjacent to the service road for the southbound exit from I-55.

Cases on Docket of Federal Court

CAPE GIRARDEAU —The fall term of federal district court reconvened Monday at 9 a.m. with a number of civil cases on the docket, including condemnation hearing.

A personal injury and wrongful death suit against Doctors Hospital, Inc., of Poplar Bluff and some staff members is to be settled out of court, Kenneth L. Dement of Sikeston, attorney for the plaintiffs, said.

In the case, children of the late James C. Romines, on two counts, were asking $100,000 judgment for burns Mr. Romines allegedly received from hot water bottles to his buttocks while a patient in the hospital. The burns of third degree resulted in the death of the patient, it is alleged in the plaintiff's petition. Amount of settlement out of court was not disclosed.

A second suit, said to be a malpractice action, against Doctors Hospital and a staff physician, Dr. E.T. Hansbrough, is set for Nov. 28. Mary A. Roberts is the plaintiff.

The petition alleges that during a surgical operation performed by Dr. Hansbrough for the removal of a benign tumor in the plaintiff's neck, the surgeon cut into her carotid artery, the main artery supplying blood to the brain, resulting in partial stoppage of blood circulation to her brain and causing serious and permanent brain damages, hemiplegia and aphsia. Judgment of $500,000 is sought.

Route K Location Approved in Cape Girardeau

The Missouri State Highway Commission has approved its previously announced location for Route K in the City of Cape Girardeau.

W. H. Shaw, district engineer, held a public hearing in the Armory in Cape Girardeau on July 24.

The approved plan is to construct this improvement from U.S. 61 along William, Frederick and Morgan Oak Streets to near Lorimier street where it will terminate. The proposed improvement could be modified to accommodate a possible future one- way traffic system on Sprigg and Frederick Streets if approved by the city council. The one- way traffic system was previously recommended by the Cape Girardeau area transportation planning committee.

The majority of those appearing at the hearing were opposed to a one- way traffic system on Sprigg and Frederick streets.

The commission acted after reviewing the hearing transcript and receiving written suggestions and comments submitted after the hearing.

Cape, Bluff Women Cited for Aiding Aged

JEFFERSON CITY — F. E. "Buck" Robinson, chairman of the governor's task force on the Older Missourian, awarded a plaque of recognition to three Missourians at the banquet held at the governor's conference on aging. Plaques were presented to Mrs. Frances McCullem, Columbia; Mrs. Myrtle Sheppard, Cape Girardeau; and Mrs. Frances Yarber, Poplar Bluff.

The Task Force presented the awards in recognition of outstanding, dedicated, nd unselfish service to assure the retirement of Missourians in health, honor and dignity.

Mrs. McCullem, for the past three years, has been the Director of the Older Americans Klub in Columbia's high- rise housing for older people. From the limited activities of three separate and small groups of senior citizens, she has built a comprehensive senior center program which includes more than one hundred different kinds of activities, including volunteer community services. More than 700 older men and women are enthusiastically participating in the program.

Mrs. Sheppard has devoted many hours to helping older people organize and carry out programs to meet their own needs. She has assisted in the formation of clubs for older people, visited in the homes of lonely older people, transported the elderly to shop and has served on the first Cape Girardeau County board for the Community Action Agency. At the present, she is serving as an unpaid consultant for the Older Americans Act program "Consumer Education for Older People," sponsored by the University of Missouri Extension, with special emphasis on assisting older Negro people.

Mrs. Yarber, as a member of the Poplar Bluff Aitrusa Club, has contributed many hours of time to counseling with older people and transporting them to the doctor, bank and shopping. Many of these older people are nursing home residents. In addition, she regularly transports older people to senior citizen monthly dinner parties and to the SEMO Button Club, a hobby club for older people. The awardee is a staunch supporter of the Poplar Bluff Senior Center and the recently started meals program for older people. Mrs. Yarber is the second citizen from Poplar Bluff to receive an award from the Governor's Task Force on the Older Missourian.

The dandelion gets its name from French words meaning "lion's tooth," suggested by its smooth leaves with coarse notches looking like teeth.

Regents Slate Fund Transfer

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) - An attorney for the Southeast Missouri State College Board of Regents said Friday and board will transfer its fundfrom First National Bank of Cape Girardeau to the Farmers and Merchants Bank to avoid possible conflict of interest.

The transfer of bond accounts, said Stephen N. Limbaugh, will be made by the first of thyyear following an audit of the accounts. Two years ago, regent funds were deposited in 25 area banks to diversify investments.

Regents C. A. Juden and L. W. Simmons of the six-member Southeast Missouri State board are directors of First National Bank.

Missouri's statutes prohibit public school administrators and aldermen of fourth class cities from sitting on bank boards. There is no mention in the law governing regents.

The Magna Carta, the charter of English liberty, is often called the Great Law in history.

Route 25 Location Approved

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri State Highway Commission approved its previously announced location for Missouri route 25 at Clarkton in Dunklin county.

W. H. Shaw, district 10 Engineer, held a public hearing on the proposed highway change at the Clarkton high school Aug. 27. Ten Clarkton citizens appeared at the hearing expressing their desire that the proposed improvement be made on the present route.

After reviewing the hearing transcripts and engineering recommendations, the commission approved the recommended location described at the hearing and cited reasons for reaching this decision: The department cannot reasonably improve along the present road due to existing drainage conditions. Also, a reasonable improvement could not be made along the present route due to the estimated high cost which would result from damages to abutting business properties.

The approved location begins on the present highway about .3 of a mile north of route 162 junction in Clarkton, proceeds in a southwesterly direction on new location, crossing Union street about .15 of a mile west of Commercial Street, then continues in a southeasterly direction to a connection with present highway about .1 of a mile south of the south city limits of Clarkton. Route 162 will be extended to the west to connect with proposed route 25.

Street connections will be constructed to provide adequate access to the proposed relocation.

Three in Line to Succeed Harper

By JACK FLACH
Globe-Democrat
Political Editor

ST. LOUIS - Three prominent Republican lawyers are considered to have the inside track as a successor to U. S. District Judge Roy Harper when he steps down next year.

Harper, a Truman appointee and one of the most respected members of the federal judiciary, is expected to retire in 1970 when he becomes 65.

The three likeliest contenders to succeed him, The Globe-Democrat has learned, are John F. Nagle, who has law offices in Clayton; Wayne L. Millsap, whose offices are in downtown St. Louis, and H. Kenneth Wangelin of Poplar Bluff.

Appointment of a successor to Harper will be one of the top political plums the Missouri Republican Committee will receive under President Nixon.

Nangle is a veteran power in St. Louis County Republican politics - a member of the county GOP Central Committee and a strong booster of County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos. He has a wide background of trial and experience.

Millsap has become increasingly active in Republican state committee affairs, although he isn't a member of the committee, following the election of John C. Danforth as attorney general last year. Millsap served as campaign manager for Danforth, the First Republican elected to statewide office in more than 20 years.

Wangelin, who served as state GOP committee chairman from 1957 to 1962, has a reputation as a master of debate - a

H. Kenneth Wangelin

"country style" lawyer who proved to be one of the most vocal state chairmen the Republicans have ever had.

Selection of a successor to Harper could be made in one of two ways - the Nixon administration could ask an Appointments Advisory Committee in the state GOP setup for its choice, or the Nixon people could ask the panel to supply some names and the selection would be made in Washington.

Nixon handles patronage in Missouri through this advisory group which was formed recently by the state Republican committee. Members of the advisory unit are State GOP Chairman Elmer Smith, St. Louis County revenue director; Gene Taylor, national GOP committeeman of Sarcoxie, Mo.; Mrs. Rosemary Ginn, national committeewoman of Columbia, Mo., and Mrs. Jean Jones of Kansas City, vice chairman of the state committee.

The four members are part of the "new leadership" faction that has taken over the state committee from the so-called Old Guard - the faction led by Elmer Bromwich of St. Louis, Nixon's state campaign manager last year. Bromwich, whose recent attendance at a luncheon where progress of the American Party was discussed is considered to have received "the kiss of death" a far as receiving any favors from the Nixon administration is concerned.

It seems likely that the Nixon administration will follow the second alternative in picking a successor for Harper - the advisory group will be asked to provide a list of possibilities but the final determination will be in higher hands.

Several names besides those of Nangle, Millsap and Wangelin are being kicked around as possible contenders for the judgeship. One is William H. Webster, a former U. S. attorney here, where has been active in St. Louis GOP politics.

But Nangle, Millsap and Wangelin appear to be in the forefront.

Besides Harper, there are two other U. S. District judges in St. Louis - James Meredith and John K. Regan. Kansas City also has three federal judges.

A bill now pending in Congress, backed by the Nixon administration, would give both St. Louis and Kansas City another federal judge. If the Senate - passed measure, which now is in the House Judiciary Committee, wins approval the Republicans would have the delightful task of picking not only a successor for Harper but new judges as well for the state's two biggest cities.

TINY KASHMIR

Kashmir lies squeezed in a vise of converging nations, in the Himalayan foothills between heat-baked plains and mountains of eternal snow.

Divided and disputed by India and Pakistan, the beautiful mountain state feels icy winds from the Himalayas dominated by China and China-held Tibet.

From the north, Soviet Russia reaches to within a few miles of Kashmir, and Afghanistan slips between Russia and Pakistan to touch the Kashmir border.

FAO Told U.S. Won't Lag Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nixon administration farm leader told the Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome today that the United States will not take a back seat to anyone in future expansion of world agricultural trade.

Clarence D. Palmby, assistant secretary of agriculture, said in a speech prepared for the FAO conference and released here that the United States has "very serious reservations" about a proposal for developed countries to slow down farm production so poorer nations might have a larger share of exports.

"In the United States view," Palmby said, "the world needs the input of the areas—wherever they are—which can produce most efficiently. Only in this way can adequate supplies of food and fiber be made available to increased populations."

Palmby said American farmers could not curtail inputs for increasing production "in order to permit other countries to expand their output." He pointed out that the United States already has cut back production and that currently some 60 million acres of land are idle under government programs.

"We cannot concede the total market growth to our competition," Palmby said. "The United States feels that the burden of supply adjustment should not be borned by one country alone."

Palmby hailed the FAO for calling attention to barriers which have restricted agricultural trade.

"Excessively high prices, maintained by trade barriers, are interferring seriously with an efficient organization of international agriculture," Palmby said.

"In this connection the United States is eager to discuss with other countries the entire spectrum of agricultural import restrictions, export payments, price supports, supply management and related factors," he said.

The FAO conceived as a United Nations agency in 1943, is dedicated to overcoming world hunger. Palmby said he thought the goal could be accomplished, but warned of being too optimistic.

"There's danger in such thinking," Palmby said. "A widespread belief that we've finally vanquished hunger could mean that commitments to the battle—by high income countries as well as the less developed—would be cut too sharply and too soon."

If this happened, Palmby said, countries short of food or those on the margin would be vulnerable if widespread drought occurred again.

MAKE AMERICA A BETTER PLACE.

LEAVE THE COUNTRY.

Of all the ways America can grow, one way is by learning from others.

There are things you can learn in the Peace Corps you can't learn anywhere else.

You could start an irrigation program. And find that crabgrass and front lawns look a little ridiculous. When there isn't enough wheat to go around in Nepal.

You could be the outsider who helps bring a Jamaican fishing village to life, for the first time in three hundred years. And you could wonder if your country has outsiders enough. In Watts. In Detroit. In Appalachia. On its Indian reservations.

Last year, for the first time, Peace Corps alumni outnumbered Volunteers who are now out at work overseas.

By 1980, 200,000 Peace Corps alumni will be living their lives in every part of America.

There are those who think you can't change the world in the Peace Corps.

On the other hand, maybe it's not just what you do in the Peace Corps that counts.

But what you do when you get back.

The Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525.

SHUTFORD, England (AP) — This Oxfordshire community has entered the annual competition to choose Britain's prettiest village, but the 250 inhabitants don't want to win. They hope their crumbling community will get a special award for being an eyesore. Residents complain county municipal authorities have let empty cottages decay, weeds sprout on sidewalks and fences fall down.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. (John 8:12)

PRAYER: Lord Jesus, help us to look unto Thee that we may see all things in Thy light. We would remember today all those who are sad and troubled. May they know that they will never be tried above that which they are able to bear. Show us how we can make life happier and less hard for them. We ask this for Jesus' sake. Amen.

If You Were the Judge

Hippie Conduct Not Proof of Insanity

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Harvey was 26 years old and lived the life of a typical hippie. He scrounged for a living, indulged in hallucinogenic drugs, engaged in free love, sponged off his parents and sincerely believed that his way of life was preferable to that of society in general. Finding his personal appearance, conduct and beliefs offensive and irrational, his parents sought to have him declared an incompetent and sent away to a mental hospital for help. And, while a court appointed expert found Harvey to be suffering a mental disorder, Harvey's own expert arrived at a contrary opinion.

"There's nothing wrong with me," Harvey assured the judge. "It's society that's got the wrong notions. I've never mismanaged or dissipated anything nor have I ever been cheated or victimized by anyone. Believe me I've got all my marbles."

"That's what he says," retorted Harvey's parents. "The fact is, anyone who acts the way he does, looks the way he does and believes what he believes, obviously, needs help."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you declare hippie Harvey an incompetent person and send him away to a mental institution for treatment?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that while Harvey's parents were obviously motivated by a sincere desire to save him from a life of waste and degradation and to have him restored as a useful and respected member of society, the fact that he has elected to lead the kind of life he has chosen to lead, and to entertain beliefs and to engage in conduct that is repulsive, offensive and objectionable to others does not necessarily indicate mental incompetency, nor does it justify confining him to a mental institution. It raises a substantial question as to his mental stability, but the evidence is insufficient to establish that he is legally insane.

One Motorboat for Every Fifty Missouri Residents

COLUMBIA — Missourians love water sports and recreation. One can scarcely view Missouri's numerous watery playgrounds without seeing first- hand evidence of this aquatic love affair. Boats are always a common sight on any lake or stream.

Who owns boats? How many Missourians own motorboats? What are these craft used for -- fishing, skiing or just cruising? Do boat owners live near major lakes or streams? How often do they use their boats? How much money do they invest in their craft?

To answer these questions, the Missouri Poll examined data gathered in a survey of motorboat owners conducted in 1967 by the Public Opinion Survey Unit, Business and Public Administration Research Center, University of Missouri. The survey was conducted to estimate the amount of gasoline consumed by motorboats to help determine public policy on gasoline tax use. For purposes of the original study, the sample was drawn more heavily from certain areas than from others. Accordingly, this is not a true sample of all boat owners in the state, but nevertheless, it does give a good idea of the characteristics and general distribution of motorboat owners.

Under Missouri law, boats which use motors larger than 10 horsepower must be registered. Boats using motors smaller than 10 horsepower need not be registered although many small boat owners do register their craft. The total number of registered boats in Missouri was estimated to be 60,500. The number of small unregistered boats was estimated to be about 20,000.

The data indicate there was one registered boat for about every 85 Missourians. If the unregistered boats with motors under 10 horsepower are included, there would probably be one motorboat for every 50 people.

However, the proportion of boats to people varied widely from one section of the state to another. The lake areas had the highest proportion. For example, in the Lake of the Ozarks region there was one registered boat for every 12 residents.

The central cities and some rural areas had the lowest proportions. In St. Louis City, there was only one boat for every 225 residents. In most rural and suburban areas, there was one registered boat for every 50 to 100 people.

An interesting comparison is offered by Greene County (Springfield) which is metropolitan and located midway between the state's major lakes. The proportion in this area was high with one boat for every 31 people.

Boating in Missouri is, of course, a seasonal sport. Most motorboat owners-- about three-fourths-- reported they used their boats in July and August. For each of the months of May, June and September, one- half to three - fourths of the owners said they used their boats.

In the spring and autumn, during the months of April and October, only about one- third of the owners used their boats. For the remaining cold months -- November through March -- less than 15 per cent of the owners used their boats in any one month.

For registered pleasure boats, the Missouri Poll found the median investment (half the respondents above and half below the figure) in each boat and motor to be about $1,000. Few-- less than 30 per cent-- had more than a $1,250 investment and only about 10 per cent had more than $2,250 invested.

However, these figures do not include the numerous unregistered small boats with motors of less than 10 horsepower. Thus the true median investment is probably a somewhat lower figure.

The median income for owners of registered pleasure boats was about $8,500-- higher than the estimated individual income for about 75 per cent of the state's total population. The median income for all Missourians that year was slightly less than $6,000.

The Missouri Poll results indicated that self- employed businessmen and skilled workers were the two occupational groups most likely to own registered motorboats. Self-employed businessmen were heads of about 16 per cent of the state's households but owned about 25 per cent of the registered boats. Skilled workers headed about 13 per cent of Missouri's households and owned more than 20 per cent of the registered boats.

Those least likely to own boats were service workers unskilled workers, retired persons and housewives. Together, they comprised almost 30 per cent of Missouri's household heads but owned only about 10 per cent of the state's boats.

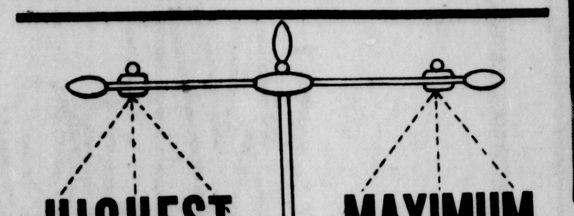

The median pleasure boat owner traveled about 100 miles to the lake or river where he normally used the boat.

Pleasure boats were used for a variety of activities, especially skiing, fishing and cruising. Many boats-- nearly 60 per cent-- were used for fishing. Owners used their boats an average of almost 35 hours a for fishing. Unregistered boats of less than 10 horsepower which were not included in the survey are normally used for fishing also.

Water skiing was the next favorite activity with about 50 per cent of the motorboats being used for an average of about 20 hours of skiing during the year. Finally, almost 45 per cent were used for an average of about 13 hours of cruising.

The results showed that registered boat motors burned an average of about 179 gallons of gasoline over the year.

In summary, the Missouri Poll results showed there was probably about one motorboat for every 50 people in Missouri. People living near lakes were most likely to own boats and people in St. Louis city were least likely to own boats. The median investment in registered boats was about $1,000 and the owners were more likely to be self- employed businessmen or skilled workers with higher than average incomes. The boats were used more for fishing than any other activity.

MFA Calls for Keeping Up Cotton Farm Income

PORTAGEVILLE — In sharp contrast to recommendations by trade- oriented groups advocating elimination of farm income protection provisions in the cotton program, Midcontinent Farmers Association through its cotton spokesman, Hilton Bracey told the cotton sub- committee of the house committee on agriculture in a Washington hearing that the over- riding consideration in any future program should be and must be the need for maintaining and improving cotton farm income levels.

The MFA cotton spokesman stressed that without proper consideration for cotton farm income "no program could succeed and cotton ill in a short period of time cease to be a major farm crop in the United States."

MFA called for continuation of the cotton provisions of the Agricultural Act of 1965 with improvements to (1) protect and increase cotton farm income on an individual basis, (2) maximize sale and use of cotton both at home and abroad, and (3) keep program costs within reasonable limits. The farm organization said that with one major change a few 'up- dating' modifications, and two badly needed additions, current trends toward destruction of the United States cotton industry could be halted and reversed.

As the major change and improvement required in the current program, MFA recommended that the so- called one- price provision be eliminated. In its place a loan level for cotton equal to production costs and re- activation and aggressive implementation of Section 203 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 which declares "quantities of cottonshall be sold as will re- establish and maintain the fair historical share of the world market for United States cotton" was urged. MFA stressed there is no reason to assume or believe that domestic use of cotton would be any different with a price support loan at production cost levels than it would be or has been under the 'give- away' domestic price established by the so- called provision. On the other hand, a price support loan at production cost levels and re- activation of a competitive bid export sales program would (a) increase cotton farm income and protect indvidual farmers from the very real threat of limitations on direct income support payments, (b) decrease government program costs, and (c) increase total sales and usage of United States cotton.

As 'up-dating' modifications in the current program MFA recommended sales, lease or transfer of allotments between producers without regard to counties- and without previous referendums, authority for farmers to over- plant up to "X" percent of their farm allotments without price support benefits (excepting loan eligibility) or penalties, creage allotment easements on a long range basis, diversion of domestic allotment (if more than the 35 percent now permitted is needed to bring supply into line with demand) on short term basis (annually), that adjustments for abnormal conditions affecting plantings and production reflect full credit for losses in acreage and production due to natural diasters, positive guidelines for various factors involved in determinations of premiums and discounts in the cotton loan program, and voluntary restraints on imports of cotton textile products.

As additions to the current program, MFA recommended: A national cotton reserve along with a good and feed reserve to meet natural disasters, maintain supply and price stability to both consumers and farmers and prevent the undesirable consequences of "feast and famine" production cycles, and that raw cotton and cotton textile products be included in all appropriate welfare programs, both domestic and foreign.

MFA said it was especially improtant and essential that farm income protection provisions in the current program be continued without change, including requirement that price support payments when added to the loan must reflect at least 65 percent of parity on the projected yield of the permitted acreage, requirement that price support and diversion payments be based on projected yields, authority for substitution of non- surplus crops on allotted cotton acreage in event of flood, drought, or other natural disaster, he 16 million acre minimum national allotment, the domestic allotment provision, and full price support eligibility (without limitations) on all cotton produced in compliance with program requirements.

MFA concluded by saying, "We do not hold that our recommendations would solve all of the problems of cotton and cotton armers. But, we do believe they are compatible with the current program and that they would move toward objectives that must be reached if cotton is to continue as a major farm crop in the United States."

Joseph Kennedy Dies

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP) — Joseph Patrick Kennedy, patriarch of an ill-starred American political dynasty, died today, losing an eight-year struggle for life. He was 81.

In a brief announcement from the Kennedy family compound on Cape Cod overlooking Nantucket Sound, a family spokesman said death came at 11:05 a.m. (EST).

His wife Rose and other members of the family were with him at the time, the spokesman said.

A financier and one of the nation's wealthiest men, Kennedy had been partially paralyzed since suffering a stroke in Palm Beach, Fla., on Dec. 19, 1961.

The former ambassador had suffered setbacks from time to time since then, and had been growing progressively weaker since sustaining a mild heart attack Saturday.

The founding father of the Kennedy clan suffered through the assassinations of his sons John and Robert after losing his eldest, Joseph P. Jr., in World War II.

John was killed in Dallas, Tex., Nov. 22, 1963. Robert was shot in Los Angeles June 5, 1968, and died the next day. He had just received a boost in his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination with a victory in the California primary.

Navy Lt. Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. was killed in action Aug. 12, 1944. He was piloting a plane assigned to knock out German V2 rocket bases when the craft exploded.

Edward, the youngest and only surviving son, had a close brush with death June 19, 1964, in a plane crash. His back was broken, but he recovered after a six-month stay in hospitals.

Tragedy of another sort hit the family last summer when a car driven by Edward plunged into a tidal pond on Chappaquiddick Island off the Massachusetts coast and Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, of Washington, a former secretary of Robert, drowned.

The accident and its repercussions clouded the political future of the senator, who did not report the mishap for more than eight hours and who was given a two-month suspended sentence for leaving the scene of an accident.

Aluminum Plant to Be Heavy User of Electricity

John Stinich, facilities manager of the Noranda Aluminum Company plant at New Madrid, estimated last night that the plant would use more electricity in an hour than Sikeston consumes in a month.

His comment was made during a speech by John Bryan Snider, cost accountant at the plant, to the Rotary club at the Rustic Rock Inn.

Snider said the company hoped to begin processing alumina in month from electrically heated furnaces. A rod, wire and cable plant on the industrial site already is manufacturing wire in test runs from aluminum shipped into the plant.

Noranda's aluminum processing plant will convert alumina, which will be shipped by barge up the Mississippi river from Louisiana, into aluminum ingots or billets. Molten aluminum from the plant will be used in the rod, wire and cable facility.

There will be 186 furnaces in the smelter plant, which will operate 24 hours a day. Coke will be shipped by barge from the north, Snider said reduced to powder and will be used to manufacture carbon anodes to maintain even temperatures in the furnaces.

Alumina will be removed from barges by suction onto conveyors and carried into large storage bins at the plant. Alumina is a powdered substance manufactured from bauxite.

Snider said that aluminum can be processed by extrusion, casting, rolling, forging and by drawing into desired shapes for a variety of uses.

A power plant is being built on the site to furnish electricity for the Noranda plant, now under construction.

Snider said that bauxite was presented in the soil everywhere except in the arctic regions and that aluminum was discovered in 1821. At first the metal was high priced but discovery of a new method of processing it brought the price down. Snider was introduced by Kenneth Williams.

Bill Swann, a member of the spokane Valley, Wash., Rotary club and Noranda plant engineer, was another guest at the meeting.

Charles E. Lewis, whose classification is office machines, repair, was introduced as a new member. Another new member is Richard Tilleros, whose classification is computer data processing service.

Lee Downey of Houston, Mo., was a guest of Thatcher Scism; George Butler was a guest of Clyde L. Launius and Ralph Hamp of St. Louis, a guest of Pat Jones.

Emily Bruce entertained at the piano.

Shots Fired Through Glass

NEW MADRID - Vandals struck at the Seemann - Monan Motor Company, 423 Main Street, last night. Shots were fired through two plate glass show windows and into door windshields and door glasses of seven 1970 Chevrolet, Oldsmobile and Pontiac automobiles. Damage is estimated at $1,000.

The damage was discovered this morning by the owner, Robert Seemann, when he went to work.

Police Chief O. E. Householder said the damage was probably done by a small .22 caliber weapon.

Two Treated

Two received emergency treatment yesterday at the Missouri Delta Community hospital:

Ronda Aileen Miller, East Prairie, injured right eye, and Willa B. Rodgers, Sikeston, injured finger.

Astronauts Bide Time in Orbit

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — America's Apollo 12 explorers circled the moon in perfect orbit today, only hours away from a bold attempt at a bull's-eye landing on the craggy, pocked surface and man's second expedition to this mysterious world.

Their target: a tight 400-footwide circle on the eastern edge of the Ocean of Storms.

Their goal: the first detailed scientific exploration of the lunar surface.

Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr., Richard F. Gordon Jr. and Alan L. Bean reported they were ready for the landing after their first close-up, breath-taking look at the moon's stark beauty, a sight they described as "fantastic."

"We're ready to go," declared Bean after an inspection of the landing craft Intrepid showed everything "shipshape."

The astronauts slept through most of earth's daylight hours today, resting for a grueling night in which Conrad and Bean are to fly Intrepid to the moon while Gordon continues to orbit in the command ship Yankee Clipper.

The landing is set for 1:53 a.m. EST Wednesday.

Hours later, at 6:02 a.m., Conrad and Bean are to start a 3½hour excursion outside, becoming the third and fourth men to leave their footprints in the powdery lunar soil.

A second excursion is scheduled early Thursday. Both will be broadcast live to earthlings via color television.

If successful, Conrad and Bean will record another triumph for human courage and knowledge and they will open boundless frontier of space a bit farther, paving the way for future Apollo voyagers to explore more difficult terrain in mountains and craters.

Conrad and Bean slipped through a connecting tunnel into Intrepid's cabin early today to inspect and test many of its systems.

After an 80-minute check, Bean reported: "We've checked out all the things we're supposed to and they're all shipshape. We're ready to go."

Conrad and Bean hope to set Intrepid down precisely in a 400foot-wide circle in the Ocean of Storms on the western side of the moon's visible face at 1:53 a.m. EST Wednesday. Their goal is the first detailed scientific exploration of the lunar surface.

Conrad and Bean inspected the landing craft six hours after Apollo 12 swept into lunar orbit which prompted outbursts of awe and enthusiasm from all three as they gazed at the wild and wondrous landscape below.

"Wowee!" Bean shouted Monday night. "Boy it's beautiful down there. Look at that crater."

Through color television, the astronauts shared their magnificent view with earthlings a quarter-million-miles away.

The 30-minute telecast followed the course of Apollo 12 as it moved across a narrow band, moving from east to west. Large and small craters, rugged mountains and flat plains were visible as the camera panned across the desolate landscape.

"Even in earth orbit at night or in the daytime, the sky was never as black as it is here," Conrad reported. "This is the blackest black I ever saw."

For Conrad and Bean the view from 70 miles high was a preview for their attempt to land on the eastern shore of the Ocean of Storms.

They are to separate the landing craft Intrepid from the command ship Yankee Clipper at 11:16 p.m. tonight. For more than 2½ hours they will keep the world in suspense as they execute maneuvers on the dangerous and difficult descent.

Their goal is a pinpoint landing near an unnamed crater, an area described by Conrad before the flight as "gently rolling, pocked with small craters, but relatively smooth."

The astronauts have dubbed the landing target "Pete's Parking Lot" because it is Conrad, the Apollo 12 commander, who must steer Intrepid to the touchdown.

Using new procedures, the astronauts hope to overcome the four- mile landing error of Apollo 11 last July and park close to a 600-foot-wide crater which is the home of an unmanned Surveyor spacecraft which softlanded on the moon 2½ years ago.

The stage was set for man's second attempt to land on the moon at 10:47 p.m. Monday night when Conrad, Gordon and Bean triggered Yankee Clipper's big engine on the lunar backside and swept into an initial orbit ranging from 72 to 194 miles above the surface.

It wasn't until 18 minutes later, when Apollo 12 reappeared around the edge of the moon, that orbit was confirmed.

Conrad's voice broke the silence. "Yankee Clipper with Intrepid in tow has arrived on time.

"I guess that like everyone else who has just arrived, the three of us are plastered to the windows just looking," he added. "For naval troops, it doesn't look like a very good place to pull liberty, though."

Farmer May Get More of Food Dollar

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers may receive the biggest share of consumer food dollars this year since 1955, says the Agriculture Department.

A preliminary estimate of the costs of marketing the nation's food shows farmers may get 41 cents of each dollar spent by consumers for items originating on farms.

Last year farmers received 39 cents of each dollar spent on a selected "market-basket" list of food items. Except for the first three months when the average was 40 cents, this year's quarterly share has been 41 cents, the department said.

The report, issued Monday, said food prices probably will continue rising during the first half of 1970. This reflected a report last Friday in which economists said 1969 retail food prices probably would average nearly 5 per cent more than last year.

Officials said the market-basket list of food, which cost $983 for an entire year in 1957-59, was expected to average $1,174 this year.

Last year the same amount of food cost $1,118 when the farmer received 39 cents of each dollar consumers spent.

The 1969 market-basket price was estimated to include $477 paid to farmers, and $697 for transporting, processing and marketing it at retail stores.

"Returns to farmers for market-basket foods in the third quarter of 1969 were up 10.7 per cent from a year earlier," the report said. "Animal products accounted for most of the rise, although returns were also up moderately for other products."

Bell City Man Given Jail Term

George Butrum, Bell City, was given a 60-day jail term this morning in magistrate court after he told Judge M. E. Montgomery he had never "made an attempt" to get a driver's license.

The judge also levied a $25 fine against Butrum for failure to have a license.

Before the sentence was imposed, Butrum told the judge he had intended to take an examination for license next week.

Judge Montgomery reinstated a parole for Joyce Litchford, Sikeston, after revoking it last week. She was given a six- month jail sentence on May 29 for writing bad checks. This was suspended pending good behavior for one year.

Upon learning last week the woman had since written additional bad checks, Judge Montgomery revoked the parole and ordered the sentence be served. She appeared in court this morning with an attorney, who informed the court that restitution would be made on the checks. The judge reinstated the parole providing she pays court costs within a week.

Parole for Harold Ray "Bubba" Smith, Sikeston, was revoked this morning. Smith was given a six month jail term on Jan. 28 for aiding and assisting others to escape from the juvenile detention cell at Benton on Jan. 6.

After serving more than 100 days of his sentence, a brother appeared with Smith before Judge Montgomery and said he had a job for him in another state.

Smith was recently charged with public intoxication by police and was being held in custody for failure to pay his fine.

He appeared in magistrate court this morning and Judge Montgomery ordered the remainder of this jail term be served.

James E. Moore III, assistant Scott County prosecuting attorney, represented the state.

Judge Montgomery levied a suspended 60-day jail sentence against Ronald S. Darnell, Sikeston, for improper vehicle registration. Moore told Judge Montgomery Darnell's license plate expired in July. Darnell told the judge he had "no money" to purchase a license. Judge Montgomery suspended the jail term upon payment of $5 and costs. Darnell is on probation for one year.

Persons fined for speeding were Elinor Gaines, Dexter, $10; Ronald Rogers, St. Louis, $10, and Janet Knoderer, Painton, $10. Warrants were issued for Gary Garrison, 825 East Hunter, and Elizabeth Scott, St. Charles, who failed to appear on speeding charges.

John Lee Ladd, Sikeston, was fined $10 for having inadequate car brakes.

Dora Johnson, route one, Sikeston, was fined $10 for failure to have a driver's license.

Acie Dixon, 1505 North Street, was fined $10 for careless driving.

Roy Owens, Malden, was fined $10 for operating a limited licensed commercial vehicle in excess of 25 miles of Malden.

A bad check charge against Walter Cowan, 534 Matthews, was dismissed upon payment of costs.

A careless driving charge against Phillip Newman, route one, Sikeston, was dismissed after Moore told the court he had not been provided sufficient information from the Highway Patrol to prosecute.

James Stacy, Festus, pleaded innocent to child neglect. The case was continued one week.

Felonious bad check charges against Marvin Wyatt, no address given, and Nancy Gretchell, 415 Kendall, were continued a week to allow the defendants time to get legal advice.

A charge of entering the juvenile court room at Benton in an intoxicated condition was continued one week against Paul Phillips, Sikeston.

Water Treatment Plant Described

NEW MADRID — In regular bi- monthly session last night with president of the board Ed LaFalle presiding, the city council heard preliminary plans and saw specifications for a one million gallon per day water treatment plant.

The firm of Riddle and Associates, Kansas City, presented the plans and a mockup of the proposed plant. The plans provide for future expansion of the plant to provide 4 million gallons per day. The new plant will supply water requirements for a population of 5,000.

An ordinance was passed providing for no parking on Scott Street from the intersection from Crisler to Powell and from Powell to Virginia and Virginia to Main street.

By a 3 to 2 vote, the board passed a resolution permitting a variation in the zoning ordinance to allow Mrs. Earnest Lawrence to operate a beauty shop in a residence at 841 Main St., previously zoned residential.

Approval was given to a revolving fund of $5,000 for local purchases by Comstock Roper, sub- contractors, for the industrial park power plant project.

After discussion, the council ordered a $250 cash bond be required for tree cutting contractors for damage to city streets and power lines.

An audit of the Municipal Light and Power Plant for 1968 and the city for 1965 through 1968 was approved.

Bills approved in connection with power plant construction in the St. Jude Industrial Park were R. L. Jefferies Trucking Co., $355.88; Jones and Laughlin Steel Service, $4,859.11; the Lofland Co. of Arkansas, $252.84; Beaver Welding Supply Co., $668.09; General Installation Co., $781.87; Railroad Maintenance and Construction Co., $19,340.10; Cyclone Fence Division, $3,266.46; River, Sand, and Stone Co., $9,325; Armco Steel Inc., $2,380.08; Kaiser Engineers, Inc., Middletown, $1,305.07, Desoto Air Park, $285; Hannon Supply Co., $435.14; Fabrick Brothers Equipment Co., $359; Dorris Septic Tank, $332.50;

Ogden Surveying Equipment Co., $227.27; North Pacific Lumber Co., $3,628.41; Moores of Missouri., $864.27; Mine Safety Appliance Co., $205.80; Sligo Inc., $287.21; SIGHTSEER Campers, $1,450; St. Jude Ready Mix Co., $6,763.50; Lowes of Blytheville Inc., $1,060.05;

Stupp Brothers Bridge and Iron Co., $934; Burns and McDonnell Engineering Co., $82,229.28; Kaiser Engineer Inc., Oakland, Calif., $46,052.93; and Kaiser Engineers Inc., New Madrid, $80,140.58.

Arms Debate Lacks Usual Harshness

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Plainly concerned about the success of their arms limitation talks in Helsinki, the United States and the Soviet Union launched the annual disarmament debate at the United Nations Monday on an unusually conciliatory note.

Omission of the usual invective made delegates hopeful that this year's U.N. disarmament talks will be more fruitful than such discussions in the past.

U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost and Ambassador A.A. Roshchin of the Soviet Union both expressed hope that the Helsinki talks would bring an end to the nuclear arms race. Both also called for quick approval of the U.S.-Soviet draft treaty to keep the seabed free of nuclear weapons.

Despite reservations by some small nations, it seemed certain that the assembly would approve the U.S.-Soviet draft.

The only differences expressed by Yost and Roshchin concerned the curbing of chemical and biological weapons. Two drafts on the issue, submitted by Britain and the Soviet Union, are before the assembly.

The Russian declared that the subject had become urgent because of "experiments carried out in some countries where powerful bacteriological and chemical substances have been created which imperil" mankind.

Private Helsinki Sessions Begin

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Awash with conviviality, U.S. and Soviet negotiators began private talks today to search out prospects for an accord to curb the nuclear arms race.

U.S. Ambassador Gerard C. Smith, Soviet delegate Vladimir S. Semenov and their advisers met at the American Embassy to begin working out arrangements for substantive negotiations. These preliminary discussions behind closed doors are expected to last several weeks.

The meeting today lasted an hour and a half and Smith afterward told newsmen only that they would meet again "pretty soon." He refused to say when, but other conference sources said the meeting would be Thursday.

Semenov had nothing to say to newsmen as he left the embassy.

Whether or not the envoys ever get beyond the preliminary round, the sendoff for SALT—Strategic Arms Limitation Talks—is being bathed in official good will and cordiality.

After the formal, champagnesipping public opening Monday, Finnish Foreign Minister Ahti Karjalainen entertained the diplomats at a reception.

Finnish President Urho Kekkonen is the host for today's reception. And Wednesday—for the first time in history, U.S. officials here believe—the U.S. and Soviet delegates are giving a joint party.

At Monday night's affair, Smith told newsmen the talks had "started well." Semonov termed the opening session "very fine" and predicted that would apply to today's meeting too.

Cantrell Launches Drive To Save Income Tax Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—A campaign in support of a beleaguered income tax increase is under way in Missouri.

Rep. E.J. "Lucky" Cantrell, D-Overland, announced the membership of a 51-member "Information Please" Citizens Committee Monday to head the drive. He said its purpose will be to tell the truth about Missouri's financial needs.

He charged Sen. Earl R Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, is trying to mislead the people in his campaign to get enough petition signers to put the income tax law on the ballot as a referendum issue next year.

"I think there's a chance," Cantrell said, "that when Missourians are given the facts they're going to respond to the needs of the state."

Cantrell said penal and other state institutions are short handed, the state is losing trained personne, and almost every area of state government has serious financial problems.

"I know the senator is telling the people what they like to hear," Cantrell said, "but he people ought to acquaint themselves with the facts before signing" Blackwell's referendum petitions.

He said the first phase of the campaign will be distribution of a pamphlet outlining the state's financial situation. Speakers also will be supplied to tell the story.

Cantrell said the work is being financed by voluntary contributions and Gov. Warren E. Hearnes, who got the income tax bill passed, had nothing to do with setting up the citizens committee.

Cantrell will be chairman and serving as secretary-treasurer will be Robert Livingston, Jefferson City builder.

The first name on the membership list was John L. Rollings, president of the State AFL-CIO Labor Council.

Nixon Asks Tariff Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asked Congress today to enact legislation to give him authority to make minor tariff adjustments and to permit industries to obtain easier relief from import competition.

Describing his proposals as modest, Nixon said in a special message he had found it in the national interest to continue a 35-year-old policy of promoting freer world trade.

But at the same time, he recommended that U.S. industries adversely affected by imports be provided with "readier relief"—a proposal that paralleled one advanced by former President Lyndon B. Johnson but which was not acted upon.

The Rives woman applied the brakes and skidded into a culvert on he west side of the road, the state patrol reported.

She was taken to Perry County Memorial hospital in Perryville, where she was treated for head cuts.

The front end of the car was damaged.

At 10:08 a.m. yesterday on West Malone Ave. at Ferrell's Salvage Yard, a 1959 Chevrolet driven by George W. Orr, 44, Morehouse collided with a 1968 Chevrolet driven by Raymond M. Pierce, 67, 669 West Malone.

The Orr vehicle was damaged on the right front headlight and fender. The Pierce auto was damaged on the bumper and left rear fender.

Yesterday at 3:43 p.m. at 222 North Main St., a 1969 Mustang driven by Joseph D. Dover, 26, 810 North Ranney, ran into a 1967 Ford pickup truck, driven by Annebell Cooper, 48, Anniston.

The front end of the Mustang was damaged. The left rear fender and bumper of the Ford was damaged.

At North Kingshighway and Lake Street at 5:30 p.m. yesterday, a 1969 Ford driven by Melissa McVay, 26, 1610 East Kathleen, and a 1967 Chevrolet driven by Pauline Husher, 51, 106 Hunter, came together.

The Ford was damaged on the left front end. The Chevrolet was damaged on the left front end.

Demo Leaders Blame GOP of Suppression

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders, keynoted by Hubert H. Humphrey, have accused the Nixon administration of seeking to stifle criticism and suppress dissent in the United States.

Humphrey aimed the charge at Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, his successor in that job— and beyond, at President Nixon.

"I believe the Nixon administration is really not trying to bring us together, but is engaged, knowingly or unknowingly, in a polarization process," said Humphrey, "polarization with the intended result of the suppression of dissent."

"I doubt that our country has seen in the past 20 years such an obvious and calculated appeal to our people's lesser or baser instincts," Humphrey said.

Humphrey, Democratic presidential nominee a year ago, said the administration is on a course which will lead to backlash, repression and reaction.

The Democratic Policy Council, an issue-shaping panel of party leaders headed by Humphrey, adopted a resolution declaring:

"We cannot tolerate in silence any attempt to silence debate in a free society."

The Humphrey charges and the council resolution were prompted by Agnew's Nov. 13 speech criticizing television network news coverage—specifically those commentaries that followed Nixon's report to the nation on the Vietnam war.

Humphrey said the Democrats may ask the television networks for equal time to answer Agnew's speech, which was broadcast live from a Republican conference in Des Moines, Iowa.

Illegal Money Racket Reported in Saigon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A billion-dollar international racket in illegal money is centered in Saigon and has ties in banking circles throughout the world, a Senate subcommittee was told today.

Robert R. Parker, a U.S. Embassy staff member in Saigon, told the Senate investigations subcommittee the black market in money reaches more than $150 million a year in Vietnam.

Parker is chairman of the embassy's irregular practices committee, a group of embassy personnel set up by Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker in an effort to cut down black market activities.

Heading the international money racket, he said, is a criminal syndicate of Muslim money changers from South India.

It operates through men of several nationalities from wealthy businessmen to gangs of GI deserters, he added.

Parker described an elaborate transfer system by which dollars and South Vietnamese piasters are funneled into legitimate banking channels. He said that one common payee that was used by the ring was the "Prysumeen" account at the Manufacturers Hanover Trust in New York City.

"In 1968, traffic in this account was in excess of $1.5 million a month," Parker tesified. He said Vietnamese, Koreans, Chinese, and Americans—both soldiers and civilians—are involved in the currency manipulation scheme.

"At the top of the black market hierarchy, in a kind of executive position, are a small group of well organized Asian-Indians," Parker said. "Most of these are Muslims from the Madras area of South India.

"These men—and their elaborate and obscure family ties— constitute a syndicate in the most criminal and sinister sense of the word," Parker said.

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, DConn., chairman of the investigations subcommittee said the currency manipulation racket is seriously hindering attempts to stabilize the South Vietnamese economy.

Ribicoff said the illegal money market involves federal employes, members of the U.S. armed forces, government-affiliated contractors, American businessmen, South Vietnamese citizens and nationals of other countries.

He said witnesses will give evidence on specific illegal money dealings through American and Hong Kong banks totaling about $360 million over the last five years.

The hearings are the second phase of an extensive on-the-scence probe by staff investigators over the last year.

The first phase dealt mainly with a small group of senior noncommissioned officers accused of raking hundreds of thousands of dollars from NCO clubs in Germany, the United States and South Vietnam.

Large profits are possible in illegal money operations in Vietnam, subcommittee aides said, because of the substantial difference in legal and illegal exchange rates.

The official exchange rate is 118 South Vietnamese piasters to the dollar.

The black market rate is usually 170 piasters to the dollar and has reached 200, investigators reported.

Ribicoff said the currency manipulation racket has done serious damage to the South Vietnamese economy, has made more difficult the fight against inflation and has reduced the effect of the American AID program.

In earlier hearings, witnesses pointed to William O. Wooldridge, former sergeant major of the Army, as a leader of a small band of sergeants that profited from a wide range of illegal activities at the clubs they ran.

Other witnesses alleged that Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, while provost marshal general of the Army, shielded Wooldridge from his own investigators.

The Army has stripped Wooldridge and Turner of the Distinguished Service Medals previously awarded them. And Wooldridge, still on active duty in New Mexico, was stricken from the list of command sergeant majors.

CAN'T SAY WE'RE SORRY

The search for the Loch Ness monster is finished for this year. The tourists and the searchers, including the now-famous yellow submarine, have packed up and are leaving the shores of the Scottish lake until next summer. The creature, if such exists, will have a little less than a year to devise some means of further evasive action to elude his would-be finders.

The Loch Ness Phenomena Investigation Bureau in its report on this year's observation season claims 20 verified sightings from May 17 to October 12. Last year their claim was of 14 sightings. There were 23 in 1967 and 29 in 1966. It was in 1967 that scientists claimed to have received sonar readings indicating that there was something alive and large in the murky depths of the Loch.

The Loch Ness monster shares a special niche in folklore with the yeti, or abominable snowman. These are two very special phenomena of our day. Neither has been conclusively proven. But neither have they been disproven. The only other phenomena that have received notable distinction that we can think of offhand are the flying saucers.

We have mixed emotions in regard to the Loch Ness monster. We don't really know if we want to see the creature disturbed. On the one hand we share the natural curiosity of man. But we are also aware of too many instances of man's cruelty toward his natural surroundings, animal, vegetable and mineral. We would not like to see this creature, or creatures, molested by the poking and prodding of "scientific" experimenters. Perhaps it is our deep respect for anything that has managed to exist for so long without being ruined by the influence of man. In any event, we offer our congratulations to Nessie for another successful season, and we wish it many more years in the folklore stories of our wondrous world.

ANOTHER TAX LOOPHOLE NEEDS TO BE CLOSED

Should organizations contributing to political campaigns enjoy Federal tax-exempt status?

Most of us would answer in the negative and so does Congressman Benjamin Blackburn (D-Ga.).

The Corrupt Practices Act prohibits any corporation from making political contributions; yet, Rep. Blackburn complains, labor unions which are technically corporations openly support and finance favored candidates under the guise of "educational" programs. His legislation to deny tax exemption to any organization which financially supports or endorses a candidate would apply to business or trade associations, charitable foundations, etc., eligible for Federal tax exemption.

It would amend the Internal Revenue Code to prohibit financing, endorsement and other support for any candidate in any public election, the penalty being loss of tax exemption for four years. This would result in taxes on the organization's income and loss of the charitable deduction for those contribution to be organization.

Business support for this reform is so strong that the National Federation of Independent Business poll found only 10 per cent of the business members opposed and 4 per cent undecided.

Congressman Blackburn brands the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) as "one of the most militant political organs in the country" although its exemption is based on "education." By assessing each union a monthly "contribution" based on the local membership, COPE provides funds for campaigns and propaganda. And we have evidence of this political power in Kansas since it is widely known that Governor Robert Docking received this financial support along with a few legislators with whom we are acquainted.

The fact is that union members who object to the use of their dues now have little recourse. In one case, it took 12 years for objecting members to gain legal satisfaction, at the Supreme Court level.

The Blackburn bill would permit lobbying before Congress but would sharply limit propaganda to the public. It is based on recommendations of the American Bar Association's Committee on Tax-Exempt Organizations.

This is another tax loophole that needs to be nailed shut.

STEAMFITTERS' 562 - A CANCEROUS GROWTH

Today's front page carries a story revealing what happens in a city when the disreputable St. Louis Steamfitters 562 moves in.

As might be expected in the New Madrid case, a steamfitter ex-convict is running the job. And as one would anticipate on a St. Louis steamfitters 562 job, costs have soared far beyond estimates. A New Madrid spokesman pointed out that it cost more to move a piece of heavy equipment 1½ miles from a railroad spur to the plant than it did to ship this piece of equipment across the seas and then across the country by mail.

The average citizen might shrug this point off as not affecting him in any way. However, increased cost of construction, whether it be in private industry or in public work, eventually comes out of the average man's pocket in the form of higher prices or higher taxes.

St. Louis Local 562 of the Steamfitters Union is headed by ex-convict Larry Callanan who surrounds himself with musclemen and hoodlums. The corrupt tentacles of this union reach into politics at all levels. Contributing hundreds of thousands of dollars, the steamfitters have managed to affect legisiation and even to buy a pardon for Mr. Callanan during President Johnson's administration.

Callanan, not satisfied with the confines of St. Louis, has been reaching outward and made his first move in Jefferson City back in 1967. So far as we have been able to determine only two local contractors who had guts enough to fight him - the others have simply knuckled under.

A corrupt union such as Steamfitters 562 reflects upon all unions, and we wonder why some local unions are smearing their own good names by apparently cooperating with 562 in its jurisdictional fight with the CIU in Jefferson City.

The CIU is a legally constituted, independent union, and its members are performing work for contractors who are engaged in construction at the State Capitol and the new Highway Patrol building. Both of these jobs are being picketed by 562. We doubt very much that the picketing is legal, but legal or not, it has had the effect of disrupting work on both projects.

What is happening in New Madrid could happen here and we question that members of local carpenters union, the iron workers, the electricians and truck drivers would want to see it happen here. Yet as mentioned above the officials of these unions seem to be working on the Steamfitters' side.

Steamfitters 562 is a rotten apple in the overall union barrel and decent unions should be doing everything in their power to give 562 the boot.

The men who joined CIU rather than become associated with the scandal-ridden steamfitters are to be congratulated for their common sense and their courage. Those who joined up with Steamfitters 562 did so we are sure because of empty promises and intimidations.

Pat Hickey, Steamfitter 562's member of the Missouri Legislature and local business agent for the union, now drives a Lincoln Mark III, one of the most expensive cars made in America.

Of course, union dues bought this car. Dues are also paying Callanan's expensive lawyers who are appealing his sentence in 1968 to another term in jail. Union members are also being assessed for 562's political slush fund and have no voice as how it is distributed.

This rotten union has been detrimental to the industrial growth of the State of Missouri. Like a cancerous growth, it should be cut out of Mid-Missouri. And it is up to local union members to perform this surgery.

Colonel E.I. (Mike) Hockaday, the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol, today urged parents to show their children a good example in the way they drive.

"Safe driving begins at home," Hockaday stated. "As parents drive and act, so do their children. Youngsters learn by watching. By the time they are old enough to begin driver education at school or receive practical instruction from another source, he and she have had several years of watching their parents at the wheel. What these drivers of tomorrow observe of their parents' driving habits and driving attitude will certainly affect the way in which they will approach the development of this new skill."

The Patrol Superintendent noted that if parents exceed the speed limit, refuse to yield the right of way, follow another vehicle too closely, or drink and then drive, there is a good possibility their youngsters may do the same when they get behind the wheel. These unsafe driving practices, of course, lead to accidents resulting in injuries and deaths.

"Keep in mind that in driving as in other aspects of behavior, it is what you, the parent,DO rather than what you SAY that has the most powerful influence on the young," Hockaday continued. "They are going t learn from you; it is your obligation to provide a good example.

"Parents just naturally want the best for their children," he concluded. "I urge you, therefore, to give your youngsters the best possible example of safe driving. Their lives and the lives of others who will use the highways depend on it."

NOT TO THIS DAY

Last Christmas Day, a distinguished denizen of California's swank Hillsborough suggested to his children and some of their friends that they go caroling through the neighborhood.

Accompanied by his attractive wife, he and his troubadors set out. As they were tuning up at their first stop, a distraught woman came to the door and said, "Look, fella, I'm busy as all get- out. The plumbing's on the blink and I can't get anyone to come and fix it. A mob is coming to dinner and things here are in one heluva mess! If you really feel like singing carols, come back about 9 o'clock Okay?"

"Okay," Bing Crosby said and led his troupe off to interrupt another household where the plumbing was more sophisticated.

A noted Romeo, suddenly discovering himself impotent, rushed to a doctor and demanded aid. The medico gave him a potion to take, warning him that he must not miss a meal. The next night, the patient was invited to a banquet and, not wishing to be questioned about his medicine, he privately instructed the waiter to place the proper amount in his soup.

The other guests were all served with soup and completed their course, while the impatient medicine- taker waited and waited. Finally he excused himself and rushed out to see his waiter.

"Where is my soup?" he demanded.

"I put the medicine in, Sir, and now I'm waiting for the noodles to lay down!" was the reply.

BALANCE OF PAYMENTS--SEESAW RIDE OFR U.S.

Much may have gone wrong for President Johnson in the closing years of his administration, but at least the financial breaks went his way at the very end.

In his final State of the Union address, he was able to point to both a modest budget surplus, thanks largely to the 10 per cent surtax proving more lucrative than anticipated, and a plus in the nation's balance of payments.

The latter is the more surprising and, paradoxically, also causing some concern. For the first year since 1957 more money came into the country than flowed out, contrary to predictions as late as last November that the string of deficits would be continued by something like $1.4 billion.

Instead, the combination of U.S. business bringing home an unprecedented $1.5 billion from its overseas operations from its overseas operations and an unusually large inflow of foreign funds, more than $2 billion attracted primarily by rising U.S. stock prices and interest rates, during the year's final quarter converted red ink into black.

What causes concern is that the payments surplus is, if not illusory, at least of a highly transient nature. With the slightest downturn in the U.S. economy, the foreign money could and probably would flow out again. And overshadowed by the good news in the ledger is the disturbing fact that the most important item in our interns---trade---dropped drastically to what Treasury Undersecretary Frederick L. Deming termed "a miserable $500 million" surplus.

In pervious years, overseasst spending and the defense effort have been the big spenders, dumping billions of dollars abroad and fueling the run on American gold reserves. A healthy trade surplus, running from $3 to $5 billion annually, has gone a long way to balance the drain and keep deficits manageable.

But for too many years the United States has been managing like Eliza on the ice, jumping from expedient to expedient with the bolldhounds of disaster--a panic run on the dollar-- snapping at our heels. With the once-dependable trade surplus now in danger, something more than expedients is needed to deal with a chronic balance-of-payments problem that has never looked blacker, despite the black ink for 1968.

"What about your wife?" the man asked. "What did you buyfor her?"

"A new lawn mower," the golfer said.

A SCHOOLMASTER was lecturing to a class upon the circulation of the blood.

"If I stand upon my head," he said, "the blood will run down to my head, will it not?"

"Yes, sir," assented the boys.

"Then," said the master, "why does the blood not run into my feet when I stand on my feet?"

There was a pause for a few minutes, when a bright youth replied:

"Please, sir, it's because your feet ain't empty."

It was Halloween and a neighbor answered her doorbell and confronted a wee girl beautifully costumed but without a mask.

As the child opened her bag to stow away her treat, the neighbor noticed that her mask lay at the bottom of the bag.

"Why don't you wear your mask?" she asked.

A tiny voice whispered, "I'm scared of it."

The handsome real estate agent couldn't remember when he'd rented an apartment to a more beautiful tenant.

As she bent over his desk to sign the lease he became aware that his pulse was beating in his ears with the sound of bongo drum.

"Well," he sighed, "that's that. I wish you much happiness in your new apartment, and here are the two keys that come with it."

The doll straightened up, accepted the keys, and gave him a dazzling sexy smile.

"Would you like to have a month's rent in advance?" she asked coyly, as she handed him back one of the keys!

NEED FOR AIRCRAFT CARRIERS

Congress has been debating the appropriation of funds for building more nuclear powered aircraft carriers. These carriers are desperately needed, particularly in view of the increasing size and power of the Soviet fleet.

According to Admiral Thomas Moorer, Chidf of Naval Operations, "Except for Polaris, there is probably no item of U.S. sea power the Soviets would prefer us to cut back more than our aircraft carriers."

It is easy to see why the Soviets would welcome such a cutback. Our carriers have proved invaluable in South Vietnam, serving as the base for half of all combat sorties into North Vietnam. Carriers provide mobile bases for our air power, and are completely under the control of our government, whereas land bases in foreign countries are not.

In testimony before the Senate armed Services Committee, Navy Secretary John Chafee pointed out: ''Trends in international affairs...justify the decision to project a modern, capable attack carrier force into the future."

The Soviet fleet can now carry Soviet military might to any point on the globe. The Soviets have modernized their fleet by adding helicopter carriers and several new classes of nuclear and conventional submarines. This is no time for our government to reduce the effectiveness of its naval forces.

Nuclear powered carriers are especially valuable, as the nuclear carrier ENTERPRISE has proved in Vietnam. these carriers can go much longer without refueling, thus increasing their range. They can also travel faster, thus making them less vulnerable.

Congress should appropriate the funds to build the three new nuclear-powered carriers requested by the Navy.

PARIS (AP) — They are 68,000 strong in Paris, looking out at the world from behind a curtain parted just far enough to see who you are and what you are doing on their turf.

They are the city's concierges, women whose job as apartment building house mothers is as much a French cliche —and truism— as a beret or a glass of red wine.

Now, the old woman and the job are dying out. The president of the concierge union, grandiosely called Le Syndicat les Gardiens d'Immeubles—The Building Guards Union—says 20,000 of the women will disappear over the next 10 years and not be replaced. Some 5,000 concierges are now over 75 years of age.

Letter boxes, house telephones, and a desire on the part of landlords not to pay them anymore are pushing the concierge aside.

Traditionally, she had reigned over apartment buildings from a ground-floor apartment called a loge, taking mail to tenants, holding their packages and taking out the garbage. In some cases, she has spied on visitors from behind their loge curtain, terrified subleasers with threats and trafficked in apartments with rental agencies.

Done up in a house dress, warmed by a black sweater and wool stockings and reading a copy of the gossip newspaper "Ici Paris", the concierge is a standard character in French theater and literature.

Unlike American apartment house superintendents, Paris concierges don't tend to leaky faucets or screw in new fuses. On their wobbly legs and in their felt slippers, many have enough trouble getting around their loges.

Concierge salaries run from about $80 to $100 a month, according to the union, but now that the women are entitled to a month's paid vacation and social security, owners of small buildings are just as happy to have them gone. Carpenters and other small businesses sometimes can be fit into their former quarters.

The union's newsletter showed the situation clearly: there were more than 100 ads placed by people seeking concierge jobs and only one employment offer —"Present yourself at Busy Bee Cleaning, 4 Cite d'Hauteville, for work as a housekeeper."

The number of concierge jobs is also reduced every year by 200 to 300 as a result of health inspections finding their loges unfit for human habitation.

"It's a sad situation," the union president, Rene Laffon, says, "because the women are paid these famine wages. But they accept life in a rat hole because they have nowhere else to go. Our retirement home has only room for 80."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON--The armed forces runs a little-known, top-secret courier service that convoys this nation's military secrets under maximum security to U.S. bases around the world. Sleeplessly, the officers and men of the Armed Forces Courier Service baby-sit vital packets, crates and bags of secret material in transit.

Not long ago, a shipment of security documents to Frankfurt, Germany, was clandestinely unloaded at the airport. The weary but dutiful guardians were a bit startled when a crate of secret documents began to leak red liquid.

They poked into the classified cargo and discovered a dozen cases of red American wine, being smuggled as secret data by some army bigwig. The indomitable couriers had ridden shotgun on 120 bottles of non-secret, non-vintage wine.

Not only was this a serious violation of regulations but a disastrous breach of taste. The contraband wine had been bootlegged into Germany, which ranks second only to France in the quality of its wines.

--FLYING WINE CELLAR--

Horrified Army authorities immediately hushed up the incident. It might give the public the idea that the elite service, established to protect our nation's military secrets, had been corrupted by the Army brass into a military parcel post service for high-ranking scofflaws.

Queried by this column, the Army confessed that the flying wine cellar had been intended for the 25th anniversary of the liberation of Holland. Indeed, it was accompanied in the top-secret crates by plaques commemorating the historic battle. Like the wine, the plaques would hardly qualify as "classified material requiring protective handling by military courier," as the Army regulations require.

This column has learned that at least three other incidents of suspected illegal shipments by secret courier are under investigation. How much unchallenged contraband has gone from the U.S. to brass hats abroad, or from crony to crony within the U.S., cannot be determined

Note: Within the country, secret documents are often transported by air taxi and trucks. Priority Air Dispatch, Inc., handles some of these lucrative shipments. It is an interesting coincidence that Priority Air's chief dispatcher is a retired Navy commander, E.F. Carl, formerly director of the Armed forces Courier Service.

--INFERIOR U.S. SCHOOLS--

In a confidential report ot Congress, ex-Ambassador to Madagascar David King has declared bluntly that impoverished, underdeveloped Madagascar has better public schools than he has found in the United States.

"Its teaching methods are austere," he acknowledges, "without frills or gadgets." But he claims that Madagascar turns out "better informed, better trained and better adjusted" high school graduates. He blames the American "inferiority" upon "our failure to discipline our students to stretch their minds more fully."

Just back from Madagascar, King made a detailed study of the Malagasy school system during his 2 1/2 years as ambassador. Five of his own children attended school there. His findings, stamped "confidential," have been submitted to the House Education and Labor Committee.

"I have seen the Malagasy students in the fifth and sixth grades," he states, "wrestle with tough grammatical language assignments which wouldn't be expected of American students before at least the seventh or eighth grades, if ever. Since I cannot agree that Americans are innately less mature than Malagasy, I must assume the cause of this humiliating descrepancy is our own academic foot dragging."

In King's view, "The blackest day in the history of American education was the day our teachers threw away the word 'must' and substituted a low-fear permissiveness, incapable of meeting the average student's requirements for a program of systematic study. Today, an American parent has to enroll his children in a foreign school order to realize what a low-calorie diet they have actually been surviving on....

--TOO LITTLE HOMEWORK--

"The meagerness of our required workload is all the more bewildering in view of the increasing amounts of free time made available to our students by modern technology. The line taken at current academic conclaves is that America, being under pressure to teach its youth more facts in less time than ever before, has turned out a generation of students better informed than any other generation since the beginning of time.

"This may be correct if we are talking about quantities of students taught, but if we are talking about quantities of information absorbed by individual students, then the proposition is open to serious question."

Noting that Madagascar's total school budget "could scarcely pay for the nose cone on a Saturn V rocket," King acknowledged that American students "enjoy countless advantages" such as "a more cosmopolitan environment, a luxury budget for first-class facilities and opportunities for travel and broadening individual horizons."

But he demands: "How can our school system claim credit for these?

The King study may spur Congress into taking a more penetrating look at America's schools.

Comments To The Cube Or 'Why Remain A Virgin.'

Dear Readers: Remember the letter from Wyoming Ice Cube--the 18-year-old Casper cutie with the high date turnover? She had been called everything from a tease to a mental case. A pre-med student told her she'd probably have a nervous breakdown because of her pent up emotions. In desperation, the girl performed an analysis on her social life. Her findings were as follows: Invariably the fellow was mannerly and respectful on the first date. On the second date he made it clear he wasn't about to waste any more time. His question was to the point: "How about it?" On the third date if she wasn't willing to lie down and talk things over he would feed her telephone number to the nearest goat.

Cube asked me, "Is virginity outmoded? Do men REALLY want everything they ask for, or are they merely testing?"

I told her I'd ask the fellows. And I did. Here is a sampling of the replies:

YALE CLASS OF '42: This will probably come as a disappointment to most college students, but you didn't invent sex, my little chickadees. There was a good bit of it in "the olden days." I got my share, probably more. But the girl I married was the one who said, "Nothing doing until we get married." We had some knock-down, drag-out arguments but I was secretly happy that she won them all. We celebrate our 25th next month.

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA: I wish Ice Cube could listen to the conversations in the men's dorm. It would settle the question once and for all. The nicknames---"Mattress Mary," "Horizontal Helen," and "Round-heeled Ruthie" are just a few. Of course it's rotten, but most guys figure if a girl doesn't have any respect for herself, she doesn't deserve any from them.

COLORADO U.: If I score on the second or third date, I put C.P. next to the babe's phone number. It stands for "Community Property." I've never dated a C.P. more than three times. They are usually super-dumb and crashing bores.

FROM OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY: If Ice Cube is left sitting home on her highly prized assets because she refuses to go to bed on the third date, she should ask herself,"What's wrong with my bait? Why do I attract such scum?"

FROM ORLANDO: Men have been making jokes about chastity for a long time.---During World War II the G.I.'s in London said, "If a virgin walked down Trafalgar Square the statue of Lord Nelson would raise his hat to her." Funny how a guy will bed down with anyone who is willing but he'll kill a guy who takes advantage of his sister, or, heaven forbid, his daughter.

U. OF KANSAS: Cube is lucky to learn on the third date what the jerk is after. She can dump him fast instead of wasting her valuable time.

WATERLOO,ONTARIO: As a psychiatrist I can assure Ice Cube that vastly fewer people become disturbed because of abstention compared with those who are wracked with guilt caused by sexual promiscuity.---W.F.W. (M.D.)

FROM OMAHA: I married at age 30. My bride was 25. Neither my bride nor I had sexual intercourse until the night we were married. Please print my name. I am proud of it.---C.H.W.

Dear C.H.W.: Congratulations, Lover, but I'm not sure your wife would care for the publicity. If it's all the same to you, I'll just use your initials.

Fashion Trends

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It hits men at different times and different places—for some it's at an important board meeting, for others, on the jam-packed commuter train or at their mother-in-law's house.

Suddenly, the word "Christmas" leaps into mind, the image of a wife or sweetheart flits past and the old sinking sensation hits the stomach as Everyman realizes he has to come through with an original gift for the holidays.

Christmas. Everyman reasons, is a time of joy and peace and happiness. Then why are his palms sweating?

Because he views the world of women's gifts as an impenetrable jungle set with frightening traps for male shoppers: Sweet little old ladies who turn into umbrella-wielding monsters in a department store; counters of outrageously priced, unidentifiable objects; crowds of careening females who all look as though they know where THEY'RE going, so why doesn't HE?

Listen, fellas, Christmas doesn't have to be that way. All you need is a vivid imagination: "If you were a woman, what would you want for Christmas?" Then fit your imagination to your budget.

The promise-her-anything slogan still holds this season. Perfume leaves her and you smelling like a rose for Christmas.

Fur can be fun, especially in muffs, scarves and boas. If you want to be more extravagant, a mini, maxi or in-between fur coat will warm her heart as well as her legs. Fake fur bags and hats make her smile, too.

Uncirculated coins are exactly the same as other coins except they have not been distributed through normal banking channels.

Stealing, bunting and knickers were baseball innovations of the 1860s. The World Almanac says. In 1865, Eddie Cuthbert of the Philadelphia Keystones was the first to steal a base and the next year Dickey Pearce of the Brooklyn Atlantics first deliberately bunted. The Cincinnati Red Stockings of 1868 were laughing-stocks when they introduced knickerbocker pants.

Risco Scores Upset

WARDELL -- Coach Randy Benson's surprising Risco Tigers upset fourth - seeded Holcomb in opening round play of the North Pemiscot Invitational tournament at the Ross gym here last night, 76-70 after top - seeded Delta C-7 crushed Naylor 75,47.

Tournament action resumes tonight as second - seeded Gideon battles Clarkton at 6:30 p.m. and third - seeded North Pemiscot meets Cooter at 8 p.m.

Seated in the number four spot, Holcomb was jolted with a loss by the impressive Rosco team. Risco, with four of its starters returning from last years team, looked tough as they fought back from an early deficit to post a win.

High point man for Risco was Larry Calvert with 20 points, but not far behind were teammates Alvin Owens with 18 and Darrell Wood with 16. For the Holcomb Hornets, Steve Lomax paced his squad with 20 points, as Miller and Collier followed with 18 and 15 points respectively.

Holcomb jumped into an early first quarter lead, as they out scored Risco 24-13. Their lead soon fell, as Risco scored 26 points to Holcomb's mere 10 in the second quarter. Risco was never able to regain the lead as Holcomb remained on top until the final buzzer sounded.

The Chargers, who opened up their 69 campaign with last night's victory, jumped off to a quick lead they never relinquished. Using the fast break and skillful outside shooting, the Number One seeded Chargers racked up a total of 34 field goals, while the losing Eagles could manage only 17. The rebounding game was about equal for both teams, but Naylor took a distinct advantage in the free throws, by netting 13 of their 47 from the line.

High point man of the contest was Paul Scott of the Chargers. He pumped in 21, with teammate Steve Jones close behind with 17. Naylor's leading scorer was John Armour, who managed 17 against the tight Charger defense.

With a first round, first game victory securely under their belts, Delta now advances into quarter - final action Thursday against the Risco Tigers. It's into the loser's bracket for Naylor as they meet the loser of last night's second game, the Holcomb Hornets, Thursday at 6:30.

We can prove it's worth the extra money.

Old Taylor is not the only premium-priced Bourbon in America. But it does happen to be the top-selling premium-priced Bourbon in America.

There are about six different reasons for that. Before you pay an extra sou for Old Taylor, you should know what they are.

OLD TAYLOR
86 PROOF

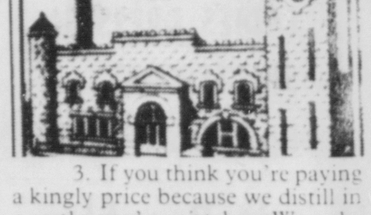

1. Old Taylor was created by an authentic genius. Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr. was easily the foremost Bourbon distiller in the late 1800's. Old Taylor is his crowning achievement. There's only one Old Taylor, simply because there was only one Colonel.

2. People (droves of them!) tried to copy Old Taylor. Finally, in 1909, an angry Col. Taylor changed the color of his label to a distinctive yellow, and printed a warning to would-be imitators where they couldn't miss it. That took care of that!

THIS YELLOW LABEL IS IN EXCLUSIVE AND CONCLUSIVE USE

3. If you think you're paying a kingly price because we distill in a castle, you're mistaken. We make Old Taylor here not because it's a castle, but because it's near the delicious limestone spring the Colonel discovered in 1887. We still draw our water from it. And nobody else gets close to it!

4. Old Taylor is a signed original. Another step the Colonel took to foil those would-be imitators. (He also went to Congress and got them to pass the Bottled-in-Bond Act—but that's another story.)

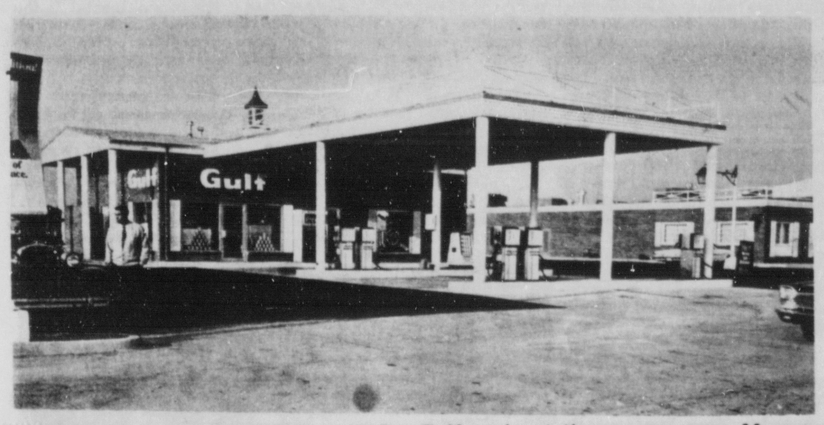

OF TOPMOST CLASS

5. The three words above are not a swinging slogan. But Col. Taylor put them there, and we haven't changed them any more than we've changed his Bourbon. We still use the same costly small grains, still tend our mash as lovingly, still do everything just as he did it. Who are we to contradict a genius?

6. Taste it.

Old Taylor. What the label can't tell you, the flavor can.

Interstate Off, On Lanes To Be Built in Cape

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Entrance and exit from I-55 at Cape Girardeau's southern city limits will be expedited under a program approved by the State Highway Commission in response to a request made last March.

The commission has given approval to the construction of two ramps on I-55, one leading to the northbound lane and the other providing exit from the southbound lane.

Announcement of the commission's approval came today by Edward L. Downs, from Albert C. Riley of New Madrid, southeast Missouri member on the commission.

Riley cautioned that the addition of the ramps to the interchange system is contingent upon approval from the Bureau of Public Roads in Washington and the providing of right of way without cost to the state or federal government

He said the ramps will be added to the state's five- year program and will be built when funds become available for additions to the program.

Marvin J. Snider, chief engineer for the highway department, was asked to work up cost estimates for the ramps and the necessary outer roadways, Mr. Riley said.

It was pointed out that while the planned additions are in the five- year program this does not necessarily mean it will be five years before they are built. If funds become available sooner and plans are completed the work can be put underway at that time.

It is not expected the right of way costs will be any problem. At the March meeting of the Cape Girardeau delegation with the commission C. A. Juden, owner of land involved, said he would provide without cost any right of way needed.

As outlined to the commission in March, the ramps are needed for these reasons:

1. Trucks and other traffic traveling south over Highway 74 and Highway 61 have no entrance to the northbound lane of I-55. They must go two miles out of their way in the southbound lane to the airport interchange and then turn back north, a total distance of four miles out of their way.

2. Vehicles traveling south on I-55 cannot turn westward onto Highway 74 until they, too, go to the airport interchange and come back north to reach an exit.

3. Travelers on Highway 25 and residents of Delta, Bell City, Advance and other points to the southwest cannot reach the northbound lane of I-55 unless they go through Cape Girardeau to reach an interchange, or take the southbound lane to the airport interchange and then turn north.

Suggested by the delegation, and approved by the commission, was this remedy:

1. Build a connecting, curved exit route from the southbound lane of Highway 61 to I-55, entering the I-55 northbound lane. This was proposed just north of Cape LaCroix Creek near the old Benton Hill Road entrance to Highway 61.

2. Make an exit from the southbound lane of I-55 north of the Highway 61 overpass. This would connect to an existing service road most of which is on highway department right of way. The service road leads toward Highway 74.

Mr. Juden said he would provide the right of way for the Highway 61 I-55 link to the north and, if needed, right of way adjacent to the service road for the southbound exit from I-55.

Cases on Docket of Federal Court

CAPE GIRARDEAU —The fall term of federal district court reconvened Monday at 9 a.m. with a number of civil cases on the docket, including condemnation hearing.

A personal injury and wrongful death suit against Doctors Hospital, Inc., of Poplar Bluff and some staff members is to be settled out of court, Kenneth L. Dement of Sikeston, attorney for the plaintiffs, said.

In the case, children of the late James C. Romines, on two counts, were asking $100,000 judgment for burns Mr. Romines allegedly received from hot water bottles to his buttocks while a patient in the hospital. The burns of third degree resulted in the dealth of the patient, it is alleged in the plaintiff's petition. Amount of settlement out of court was not disclosed.

A second suit, said to be a malpractice action, against Doctors Hospital and a staff physician, Dr. E.T. Hansbrough, is set for Nov. 28. Mary A. Roberts is the plaintiff.

The petition alleges that during a surgical operation performed by Dr. Hansbrough for the removal of a benign tumor in the plaintiff's neck, the surgeon cut into her carotid artery, the main artery supplying blood to the brain, resulting in partial stoppage of blood circulation to her brain and causing serious and permanent brain damages, hemiplegia and aphsia. Judgment of $500,000 is sought.

Route K Location Approved in Cape Girardeau

The Missouri State Highway Commission has approved its previously announced location for Route K in the City of Cape Girardeau.

W. H. Shaw, district engineer, held a public hearing in the Armory in Cape Girardeau on July 24.

The approved plan is to construct this improvement from U.S. 61 along William, Frederick and Morgan Oak Streets to near Lorimier street where it will terminate. The proposed improvement could be modified to accommodate a possible future one- way traffic system on Sprigg and Frederick Streets if approved by the city council. The one- way traffic system was previously recommended by the Cape Girardeau area transportation planning committee.

The majority of those appearing at the hearing were opposed to a one- way traffic system on Sprigg and Frederick streets.

The commission acted after reviewing the hearing transcript and receiving written suggestions and comments submitted after the hearing.

Cape, Bluff Women Cited for Aiding Aged

JEFFERSON CITY — F. E. "Buck" Robinson, chairman of the governor's task force on the Older Missourian, awarded a plaque of recognition to three Missourians at the banquet held at the governor's conference on aging. Plaques were presented to Mrs. Frances McCullem, Columbia; Mrs. Myrtle Sheppard, Cape Girardeau; and Mrs. Frances Yarber, Poplar Bluff.

The Task Force presented the awards in recognition of outstanding, dedicated, nd unselfish service to assure the retirement of Missourians in health, honor and dignity.

Mrs. McCullem, for the past three years, has been the Director of the Older Americans Klub in Columbia's high- rise housing for older people. From the limited activities of three separate and small groups of senior citizens, she has built a comprehensive senior center program which includes more than one hundred different kinds of activities, including volunteer community services. More than 700 older men and women are enthusiastically participating in the program.

Mrs. Sheppard has devoted many hours to helping older people organize and carry out programs to meet their own needs. She has assisted in the formation of clubs for older people, visited in the homes of lonely older people, transported the elderly to shop and has served on the first Cape Girardeau County board for the Community Action Agency. At the present, she is serving as an unpaid consultant for the Older Americans Act program "Consumer Education for Older People," sponsored by the University of Missouri Extension, with special emphasis on assisting older Negro people.

Mrs. Yarber, as a member of the Poplar Bluff Aitrusa Club, has contributed many hours of time to counseling with older people and transporting them to the doctor, bank and shopping. Many of these older people are nursing home residents. In addition, she regularly transports older people to senior citizen monthly dinner parties and to the SEMO Button Club, a hobby club for older people. The awardee is a staunch supporter of the Poplar Bluff Senior Center and the recently started meals program for older people. Mrs. Yarber is the second citizen from Poplar Bluff to receive an award from the Governor's Task Force on the Older Missourian.

The dandelion gets its name from French words meaning "lion's tooth," suggested by its smooth leaves with coarse notches looking like teeth.

Regents Slate Fund Transfer

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) - An attorney for the Southeast Missouri State College Board of Regents said Friday and board will transfer its fundfrom First National Bank of Cape Girardeau to the Farmers and Merchants Bank to avoid possible conflict of interest.

The transfer of bond accounts, said Stephen N. Limbaugh, will be made by the first of thyyear following an audit of the accounts. Two years ago, regent funds were deposited in 25 area banks to diversify investments.

Regents C. A. Juden and L. W. Simmons of the six-member Southeast Missouri State board are directors of First National Bank.

Missouri's statutes prohibit public school administrators and aldermen of fourth class cities from sitting on bank boards. There is no mention in the law governing regents.

Route 25 Location Approved

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri State Highway Commission approved its previously announced location for Missouri route 25 at Clarkton in Dunklin county.

W. H. Shaw, district 10 Engineer, held a public hearing on the proposed highway change at the Clarkton high school Aug. 27. Ten Clarkton citizens appeared at the hearing expressing their desire that the proposed improvement be made on the present route.

After reviewing the hearing transcripts and engineering recommendations, the commission approved the recommended location described at the hearing and cited reasons for reaching this decision: The department cannot reasonably improve along the present road due to existing drainage conditions. Also, a reasonable improvement could not be made along the present route due to the estimated high cost which would result from damages to abutting business properties.

The approved location begins on the present highway about .3 of a mile north of route 162 junction in Clarkton, proceeds in a southwesterly direction on new location, crossing Union street about .15 of a mile west of Commercial Street, then continues in a southeasterly direction to a connection with present highway about .1 of a mile south of the south city limits of Clarkton. Route 162 will be extended to the west to connect with proposed route 25.

Street connections will be constructed to provide adequate access to the proposed relocation.

Three in Line to Succeed Harper

By JACK FLACH
Globe-Democrat
Political Editor

ST. LOUIS - Three prominent Republican lawyers are considered to have the inside track as a successor to U. S. District Judge Roy Harper when he steps down next year.

Harper, a Truman appointee and one of the most respected members of the federal judiciary, is expected to retire in 1970 when he becomes 65.

The three likeliest contenders to succeed him, The Globe-Democrat has learned, are John F. Nagle, who has law offices in Clayton; Wayne L. Millsap, whose offices are in downtown St. Louis, and H. Kenneth Wangelin of Poplar Bluff.

Appointment of a successor to Harper will be one of the top political plums the Missouri Republican Committee will receive under President Nixon.

Nangle is a veteran power in St. Louis County Republican politics - a member of the county GOP Central Committee and a strong booster of County Supervisor Lawrence K. Roos. He has a wide background of trial and experience.

Millsap has become increasingly active in Republican state committee affairs, although he isn't a member of the committee, following the election of John C. Danforth as attorney general last year. Millsap served as campaign manager for Danforth, the First Republican elected to statewide office in more than 20 years.

Wangelin, who served as state GOP committee chairman from 1957 to 1962, has a reputation as a master of debate - a

H. Kenneth Wangelin

"country style" lawyer who proved to be one of the most vocal state chairmen the Republicans have ever had.

Selection of a successor to Harper could be made in one of two ways - the Nixon administration could ask an Appointments Advisory Committee in the state GOP setup for its choice, or the Nixon people could ask the panel to supply some names and the selection would be made in Washington.

Nixon handles patronage in Missouri through this advisory group which was formed recently by the state Republican committee. Members of the advisory unit are State GOP Chairman Elmer Smith, St. Louis County revenue director; Gene Taylor, national GOP committeeman of Sarcoxie, Mo.; Mrs. Rosemary Ginn, national committeewoman of Columbia, Mo., and Mrs. Jean Jones of Kansas City, vice chairman of the state committee.

The four members are part of the "new leadership" faction that has taken over the state committee from the so-called Old Guard - the faction led by Elmer Bromwich of St. Louis, Nixon's state campaign manager last year. Bromwich, whose recent attendance at a luncheon where progress of the American Party was discussed is considered to have received "the kiss of death" a far as receiving any favors from the Nixon administration is concerned.

It seems likely that the Nixon administration will follow the second alternative in picking a successor for Harper - the advisory group will be asked to provide a list of possibilities but the final determination will be in higher hands.

Several names besides those of Nangle, Millsap and Wangelin are being kicked around as possible contenders for the judgeship. One is William H. Webster, a former U. S. attorney here, where has been active in St. Louis GOP politics.

But Nangle, Millsap and Wangelin appear to be in the forefront.

Besides Harper, there are two other U. S. District judges in St. Louis - James Meredith and John K. Regan. Kansas City also has three federal judges.

A bill now pending in Congress, backed by the Nixon administration, would give both St. Louis and Kansas City another federal judge. If the Senate - passed measure, which now is in the House Judiciary Committee, wins approval the Republicans would have the delightful task of picking not only a successor for Harper but new judges as well for the state's two biggest cities.

TINY KASHMIR

Kashmir lies squeezed in a vise of converging nations, in the Himalayan foothills between heat-baked plains and mountains of eternal snow.

Divided and disputed by India and Pakistan, the beautiful mountain state feels icy winds from the Himalayas dominated by China and China-held Tibet.

From the north, Soviet Russia reaches to within a few miles of Kashmir, and Afghanistan slips between Russia and Pakistan to touch the Kashmir border.

FAO Told U.S. Won't Lag Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Nixon administration farm leader told the Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome today that the United States will not take a back seat to anyone in future expansion of world agricultural trade.

Clarence D. Palmby, assistant secretary of agriculture, said in a speech prepared for the FAO conference and released here that the United States has "very serious reservations" about a proposal for developed countries to slow down farm production so poorer nations might have a larger share of exports.

"In the United States view," Palmby said, "the world needs the input of the areas—wherever they are—which can produce most efficiently. Only in this way can adequate supplies of food and fiber be made available to increased populations."

Palmby said American farmers could not curtail inputs for increasing production "in order to permit other countries to expand their output." He pointed out that the United States already has cut back production and that currently some 60 million acres of land are idle under government programs.

"We cannot concede the total market growth to our competition," Palmby said. "The United States feels that the burden of supply adjustment should not be borned by one country alone."

Palmby hailed the FAO for calling attention to barriers which have restricted agricultural trade.

"Excessively high prices, maintained by trade barriers, are interferring seriously with an efficient organization of international agriculture," Palmby said.

"In this connection the United States is eager to discuss with other countries the entire spectrum of agricultural import restrictions, export payments, price supports, supply management and related factors," he said.

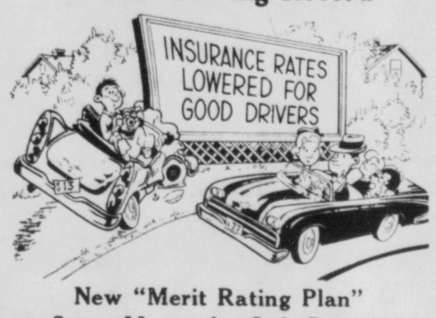

The FAO conceived as a United Nations agency in 1943, is dedicated to overcoming world hunger. Palmby said he thought the goal could be accomplished, but warned of being too optimistic.

"There's danger in such thinking," Palmby said. "A widespread belief that we've finally vanquished hunger could mean that commitments to the battle—by high income countries as well as the less developed—would be cut too sharply and too soon."

If this happened, Palmby said, countries short of food or those on the margin would be vulnerable if widespread drought occurred again.

MAKE AMERICA A BETTER PLACE.

LEAVE THE COUNTRY.

Of all the ways America can grow, one way is by learning from others.

There are things you can learn in the Peace Corps you can't learn anywhere else.

You could start an irrigation program. And find that crabgrass and front lawns look a little ridiculous. When there isn't enough wheat to go around in Nepal.

You could be the outsider who helps bring a Jamaican fishing village to life, for the first time in three hundred years. And you could wonder if your country has outsiders enough. In Watts. In Detroit. In Appalachia. On its Indian reservations.

Last year, for the first time, Peace Corps alumni outnumbered Volunteers who are now out at work overseas.

By 1980, 200,000 Peace Corps alumni will be living their lives in every part of America.

There are those who think you can't change the world in the Peace Corps.

On the other hand, maybe it's not just what you do in the Peace Corps that counts.

But what you do when you get back.

The Peace Corps, Washington, D.C. 20525.

PLUSH — Uncut cotton corduroy with a plush suede-like surface gives a look of "nowness" to campus separates. Meredith Gladstone of Crazy Horse styles it into a laced-front bolero and flared leg pants. A foulard-printed cotton blouse ties the whole outfit together.

Seventeenth-century wit Tom Brown, while a student at Oxford, was threatened with expulsion for some offense. The World Almanac notes that Brown won a pardon when he met Dean John Fell's challenge to make an immediate English paraphrase of Latin poet Martial's 33rd epigram. The immortal retort was: "I do not love thee, Dr. Fell/The reason why I cannot tell/But this alone I know full well/I do not love thee, Dr. Fell."

WANT BOOBY PRIZE

SHUTFORD, England (AP) — This Oxfordshire community has entered the annual competition to choose Britain's prettiest village, but the 250 inhabitants don't want to win. They hope their crumbling community will get a special award for being an eyesore. Residents complain county municipal authorities have let empty cottages decay, weeds sprout on sidewalks and fences fall down.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life. (John 8:12)

PRAYER: Lord Jesus, help us to look unto Thee that we may see all things in Thy light. We would remember today all those who are sad and troubled. May they know that they will never be tried above that which they are able to bear. Show us how we can make life happier and less hard for them. We ask this for Jesus' sake. Amen.

If You Were the Judge

Hippie Conduct Not Proof of Insanity

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

Harvey was 26 years old and lived the life of a typical hippie. He scrounged for a living, indulged in hallucinogenic drugs, engaged in free love, sponged off his parents and sincerely believed that his way of life was preferable to that of society in general. Finding his personal appearance, conduct and beliefs offensive and irrational, his parents sought to have him declared an incompetent and sent away to a mental hospital for help. And, while a court appointed expert found Harvey to be suffering a mental disorder, Harvey's own expert arrived at a contrary opinion.

"There's nothing wrong with me," Harvey assured the judge. "It's society that's got the wrong notions. I've never mismanaged or dissipated anything nor have I ever been cheated or victimized by anyone. Believe me I've got all my marbles."

"That's what he says," retorted Harvey's parents. "The fact is, anyone who acts the way he does, looks the way he does and believes what he believes, obviously, needs help."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you declare hippie Harvey an incompetent person and send him away to a mental institution for treatment?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that while Harvey's parents were obviously motivated by a sincere desire to save him from a life of waste and degradation and to have him restored as a useful and respected member of society, the fact that he has elected to lead the kind of life he has chosen to lead, and to entertain beliefs and to engage in conduct that is repulsive, offensive and objectionable to others does not necessarily indicate mental incompetency, nor does it justify confining him to a mental institution. It raises a substantial question as to his mental stability, but the evidence is insufficient to establish that he is legally insane.

One Motorboat for Every Fifty Missouri Residents

COLUMBIA — Missourians love water sports and recreation. One can scarcely view Missouri's numerous watery playgrounds without seeing first- hand evidence of this aquatic love affair. Boats are always a common sight on any lake or stream.

Who owns boats? How many Missourians own motorboats? What are these craft used for -- fishing, skiing or just cruising? Do boat owners live near major lakes or streams? How often do they use their boats? How much money do they invest in their craft?

To answer these questions, the Missouri Poll examined data gathered in a survey of motorboat owners conducted in 1967 by the Public Opinion Survey Unit, Business and Public Administration Research Center, University of Missouri. The survey was conducted to estimate the amount of gasoline consumed by motorboats to help determine public policy on gasoline tax use. For purposes of the original study, the sample was drawn more heavily from certain areas than from others. Accordingly, this is not a true sample of all boat owners in the state, but nevertheless, it does give a good idea of the characteristics and general distribution of motorboat owners.

Under Missouri law, boats which use motors larger than 10 horsepower must be registered. Boats using motors smaller than 10 horsepower need not be registered although many small boat owners do register their craft. The total number of registered boats in Missouri was estimated to be 60,500. The number of small unregistered boats was estimated to be about 20,000.

The data indicate there was one registered boat for about every 85 Missourians. If the unregistered boats with motors under 10 horsepower are included, there would probably be one motorboat for every 50 people.

However, the proportion of boats to people varied widely from one section of the state to another. The lake areas had the highest proportion. For example, in the Lake of the Ozarks region there was one registered boat for every 12 residents.

The central cities and some rural areas had the lowest proportions. In St. Louis City, there was only one boat for every 225 residents. In most rural and suburban areas, there was one registered boat for every 50 to 100 people.

An interesting comparison is offered by Greene County (Springfield) which is metropolitan and located midway between the state's major lakes. The proportion in this area was high with one boat for every 31 people.

Boating in Missouri is, of course, a seasonal sport. Most motorboat owners-- about three-fourths-- reported they used their boats in July and August. For each of the months of May, June and September, one- half to three - fourths of the owners said they used their boats.

In the spring and autumn, during the months of April and October, only about one- third of the owners used their boats. For the remaining cold months -- November through March -- less than 15 per cent of the owners used their boats in any one month.

For registered pleasure boats, the Missouri Poll found the median investment (half the respondents above and half below the figure) in each boat and motor to be about $1,000. Few-- less than 30 per cent-- had more than a $1,250 investment and only about 10 per cent had more than $2,250 invested.

However, these figures do not include the numerous unregistered small boats with motors of less than 10 horsepower. Thus the true median investment is probably a somewhat lower figure.

The median income for owners of registered pleasure boats was about $8,500-- higher than the estimated individual income for about 75 per cent of the state's total population. The median income for all Missourians that year was slightly less than $6,000.

The Missouri Poll results indicated that self- employed businessmen and skilled workers were the two occupational groups most likely to own registered motorboats. Self-employed businessmen were heads of about 16 per cent of the state's households but owned about 25 per cent of the registered boats. Skilled workers headed about 13 per cent of Missouri's households and owned more than 20 per cent of the registered boats.

Those least likely to own boats were service workers unskilled workers, retired persons and housewives. Together, they comprised almost 30 per cent of Missouri's household heads but owned only about 10 per cent of the state's boats.

The median pleasure boat owner traveled about 100 miles to the lake or river where he normally used the boat.

Pleasure boats were used for a variety of activities, especially skiing, fishing and cruising. Many boats-- nearly 60 per cent-- were used for fishing. Owners used their boats an average of almost 35 hours a for fishing. Unregistered boats of less than 10 horsepower which were not included in the survey are normally used for fishing also.

Water skiing was the next favorite activity with about 50 per cent of the motorboats being used for an average of about 20 hours of skiing during the year. Finally, almost 45 per cent were used for an average of about 13 hours of cruising.

The results showed that registered boat motors burned an average of about 179 gallons of gasoline over the year.

In summary, the Missouri Poll results showed there was probably about one motorboat for every 50 people in Missouri. People living near lakes were most likely to own boats and people in St. Louis city were least likely to own boats. The median investment in registered boats was about $1,000 and the owners were more likely to be self- employed businessmen or skilled workers with higher than average incomes. The boats were used more for fishing than any other activity.

Awards Presented On Achievement Day

DEXTER - "People and Places of the World" was the theme of the annual Stoddard County Home Economics Achievement Day program.

Mrs. Don Cain of the Trotter Extension club presided.

Mayor Willis Conner welcomed the club members. He discussed the progress of the community during the past half century.

Feature events of the morning activities include stories by word and picture of life in other countries.

Mrs. Archie Parker related stories of their trip to Europe, but mostly concentrated on life in Germany. Mrs. Jerry Bagby told of experiences of her family and other Stoddard County people who have lived or visited in British Honduras. Mrs. R. M. Limbaugh shared her families' experience on the people to people trip which took them into New Zealand.

The afternoon program was spent by hearing a report on the Association Country Women of the World triennial meeting which was held in East Lansing, Mich., in September. Mrs. John Horrine, vice president of the Missouri State Home Economics Council, presented slides and told of the meeting and the work of the organization in the world. She says much of the work the organization is conducted by the pennies for friendship contributions that all Home Economics clubs and other civic groups contribute.

Jim Spain, Stoddard county representative, recognized the clubs in the county for a job well done and presented the certificates to these clubs: Gold Seal Blue Ribbon - ABC Extension, Dickerson, Vinson Homemakers, Sherry Co-workers, Advance Homemakers, Aid Extension, Painton Homemakers, Trotter Extension, West Pleasant Valley, Smith, Frisco Friendship and Walnut Lane Good Will Club; Gold Seal - Walker Club, Pyle Homemakers, Tatum Helpers, Poplin, Cheerful Homemakers and Bell City Homemakers; Blue Ribbon - Howell.

MFA Calls for Keeping Up Cotton Farm Income

PORTAGEVILLE — In sharp contrast to recommendations by trade- oriented groups advocating elimination of farm income protection provisions in the cotton program, Midcontinent Farmers Association through its cotton spokesman, Hilton Bracey told the cotton sub- committee of the house committee on agriculture in a Washington hearing that the over- riding consideration in any future program should be and must be the need for maintaining and improving cotton farm income levels.

The MFA cotton spokesman stressed that without proper consideration for cotton farm income "no program could succeed and cotton ill in a short period of time cease to be a major farm crop in the United States."

MFA called for continuation of the cotton provisions of the Agricultural Act of 1965 with improvements to (1) protect and increase cotton farm income on an individual basis, (2) maximize sale and use of cotton both at home and abroad, and (3) keep program costs within reasonable limits. The farm organization said that with one major change a few 'up- dating' modifications, and two badly needed additions, current trends toward destruction of the United States cotton industry could be halted and reversed.

As the major change and improvement required in the current program, MFA recommended that the so- called one- price provision be eliminated. In its place a loan level for cotton equal to production costs and re- activation and aggressive implementation of Section 203 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 which declares "quantities of cottonshall be sold as will re- establish and maintain the fair historical share of the world market for United States cotton" was urged. MFA stressed there is no reason to assume or believe that domestic use of cotton would be any different with a price support loan at production cost levels than it would be or has been under the 'give- away' domestic price established by the so- called provision. On the other hand, a price support loan at production cost levels and re- activation of a competitive bid export sales program would (a) increase cotton farm income and protect indvidual farmers from the very real threat of limitations on direct income support payments, (b) decrease government program costs, and (c) increase total sales and usage of United States cotton.

As 'up-dating' modifications in the current program MFA recommended sales, lease or transfer of allotments between producers without regard to counties-- and without previous referendums, authority for farmers to over- plant up to "X" percent of their farm allotments without price support benefits (excepting loan eligibility) or penalties, creage allotment easements on a long range basis, diversion of domestic allotment (if more than the 35 percent now permitted is needed to bring supply into line with demand) on short term basis (annually), that adjustments for abnormal conditions affecting plantings and production reflect full credit for losses in acreage and production due to natural diasters, positive guidelines for various factors involved in determinations of premiums and discounts in the cotton loan program, and voluntary restraints on imports of cotton textile products.

As additions to the current program, MFA recommended: A national cotton reserve along with a good and feed reserve to meet natural disasters, maintain supply and price stability to both consumers and farmers and prevent the undesirable consequences of "feast and famine" production cycles, and that raw cotton and cotton textile products be included in all appropriate welfare programs, both domestic and foreign.

MFA said it was especially improtant and essential that farm income protection provisions in the current program be continued without change, including requirement that price support payments when added to the loan must reflect at least 65 percent of parity on the projected yield of the permitted acreage, requirement that price support and diversion payments be based on projected yields, authority for substitution of non- surplus crops on allotted cotton acreage in event of flood, drought, or other natural disaster, he 16 million acre minimum national allotment, the domestic allotment provision, and full price support eligibility (without limitations) on all cotton produced in compliance with program requirements.

MFA concluded by saying, "We do not hold that our recommendations would solve all of the problems of cotton and cotton armers. But, we do believe they are compatible with the current program and that they would move toward objectives that must be reached if cotton is to continue as a major farm crop in the United States."
